NACA Scientists Study Pilots' Problems At Speeds Up To 3000 Miles Per Hour

NACA AERONAUTICAL LABORATORY
LANGLEY, AFB, VA.

Research studies into the difficulties future pilots will face when aircraft speeds reach 3,000 mph and faster were reported here to some 1600 visiting scientists, industrialists, and top officers of the Armed Services at the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' triennial inspection.

With 1,000 mph tactical airplanes already going into military service, scientists here have extended their goals. They are now thinking in terms of man-carrying aircraft that travel at speeds five times or more the velocity of sound. This goal, they say, appears within the realm of "relatively early attainment."

Many of the problems of the pilot of the future, visitors were told, will result from the fact that his airplane must be capable of maneuverable flight from sea-level take-off to altitudes where the density of the air has thinned sufficiently to make possible the desired speed without burning up from aerodynamic heating.

Helping scientists determine what some of these future piloting problems may be is a machine, demonstrated here, which never leaves the ground. This new research tool is capable of duplicating the vertical and pitching motions of almost any possible airplane within the limits of disturbances likely to be encountered. It can apply normal acceleration to a pilot who sits in a chair mounted on the machine. He controls his motion by working an airplane control stick in the same manner he would when flying a real airplane.

A SLIDE PROJECTOR mounted to the chair projects a sighting image on a screen.

Dental Treatment Cutback Poses Morale Problem; Army Families Will Lose Benefit

Concern is growing at the Pentagon over the impending cut in dental treatment for Army families.

Some field commanders report that the dental-care restrictions—made mandatory by the new Family Medical Care Act—pose a serious morale problem for the Army. Officials are worried that the changes also may bring a drastic increase in the dependent load for already over-burdened dentists overseas.

In the past, the Navy and Marine Corps have not provided dental care for their dependents, and the Air Force has given its family members only limited care. The Army, on the other hand, has made a practice of providing such care wherever possible.

When the new Medicare Act goes into effect on 7 Dec., dentists of all the Services will be permitted to give dependents in the United States only emergency care necessary "to relieve pain and suffering." No restorative work or dental prosthesis will be authorized.

There is speculation that the problem may be attacked by the Cordiner Committee. This group, which is completing its recommendations on various incentives needed to attract and retain career military personnel, has been urged to ask for an expanded program of dental care for dependents of all four services.

Studies before the Cordiner Committee show that such a step would be a big

Protect Your Family, Learn About Benefits

EVERY member of the Armed Forces will want to make certain that he and his family understand the new Social Security coverage that goes into effect on 1 January. THE JOURNAL publishes on Page 11 the text of an official Pentagon explanation of this vital subject. You will want to read and save this important article.

Today's issue also brings on-the-spot coverage from bases in the United States and Europe—part of an expanding program to bring our readers first-hand reports on important developments in all the Services.

On this page, there's a story on the impact of new weapons at EUCOM headquarters near Paris, France; also a story on supersonic NACA research from Langley AFB, Va.

Turn the page for an eye-witness report of an airpower demonstration at Eglin AFB, Fla.

An account of specialized jet noise problems which are being met by the Third Air Force in England, whose headquarters are at Ruislip, near London, is a Page 3 highlight.

The Marine Corps' new "vertical envelopment" concept of atomic warfare is discussed from Quantico, Va., on Page 21.

Another USAFE story—this one about the busy Wives Club in Wiesbaden, Germany will be found on Page 22.

News of next week's issue will be found on Page 3.

Growth Of Atomic Missile Power In Europe Affects EUCOM Role Over All Services

EUCOM HEADQUARTERS

ST. GERMAIN-EN-LAYE, FRANCE

INCREASED use of guided missiles and the consequent step-up in atomic firepower by U. S. combat forces in Europe will demand changes in NATO joint command leadership.

This will undoubtedly mean a greater operations role for the U. S. European Command, which is under General George H. Decker, USA.

General Decker is Deputy to General Alfred M. Gruenther, USA, in the latter's responsibility as Commander-in-Chief Europe, a U. S. position that General Gruenther holds in addition to his NATO assignment as Supreme Allied Commander Europe.

Officials here at St. Germain-en-Laye, 20 miles west of Paris, steadfastly decline to speculate on specific changes that will be dictated by expanded use of guided missiles by U. S. elements of NATO. They readily concede, however, that urgent air defense requirements and the advent of new weapons "will make it essential, as never before in NATO history, that we all plan and fight the same war if trouble comes."

A JOURNAL reporter's coverage of military activities in Germany, Italy, France and England, coupled with information developed subsequently at the Pentagon, leads to the forecast that retiring General Gruenther and his successor, General Lauris Norstad, USAF, are going to take a new hard look at key NATO headquarters.

This review of the headquarters situation in Europe will be undertaken in the light of changes in NATO weaponry, particularly the increasing availability of guided missiles.

The Air Force has just organized the world's first guided missile wing of Martin Matador tactical missiles at Hahn AB, Germany, a development that was the subject of a special report in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL.

The Army has deployed the Corporal Guided Missile to Seventh Army units in Germany. This versatile tactical missile is headed also for the Southeastern Europe Task Force at Italy, as reported in the 22 Sept. issue of THE JOURNAL.

Honest John Rocket units, which can fire atomic weapons, with the Matador and Corporal, are available in considerable numbers to NATO planners.

The Redstone missile is seen a certain addition to NATO within the next few years. Plans now are being made at SHAPE, at EUCOM Headquarters and at General Henry I. Hodes', USA, U. S. Army European Command headquarters at Heidelberg, Germany, for use of Nike antiaircraft guided missiles in Europe.

In the United States, all Nike units are under overall command of the Continental Air Defense Command, led by General Earle E. Partridge, USAF.

This is a joint command, similar to the U. S. European Command here, which also is an all-Service Command.

Up to now, EUCOM has been fundamentally a logistics command. But it appears likely that greater emphasis is to be placed on operational aspects to assure maximum utilization on a joint-Service basis of new weapons coming into the hands of U. S. forces in Europe.

At present, General Decker's com-

5,000 Thrill At Supersonic Demonstration Of New Aerial Firepower At Eglin AFB

AIR PROVING GROUND
EGLIN AFB, FLA.

MORE than 5,000 representatives of the Armed Services, industry, Congress, and State and Federal governments witnessed the Air Force's Aerial Firepower Demonstration 7 Oct., staged here by the Air Proving Ground Command.

Impressive demonstrations dramatized the Air Force's progress in airplanes, weapons, and techniques from the Standard E-1 biplane of World War I with its 30 caliber Marlin machine guns and 80 horse power LaRhône rotary engine to the sleek supersonic Century series of fighters and interceptors firing their terrifically destructive packets of rockets and modern jet bombers dropping simulated atomic bombs.

Particularly impressing the crowds were supersonic, low level fly-bys of North American F-100s with their resulting concussive shock waves and the demonstration of toss bombing with smoke grenades attached to the bombs so the crowd could follow their paths while at the same time seeing the aircraft get away from the area before the bomb dropped or exploded.

The vast crowd was welcomed by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Burns, USAF, commander of the Air Proving Ground, whose flying days go back to 1930 with the old First Pursuit Group. He introduced Air Force Chief of Staff, General Nathan F. Twining and other visiting dignitaries.

Narrator for the show was Lt. Col. Washington, USAF, except for that portion covering the precision flying of the Thunderbirds in their F-100 Super Sabres which was narrated by Maj. Donald Ferris, USAF.

The demonstration also included such new fighters as the Convair F-102 delta wing, McDonnell F-101 Voodoo, and Lockheed F-94C Starfire. Among bombers shown was the Douglas B-66 which dropped a token load of 14 750-lb bombs. The B-66, powered with two Allison J-71 jets, is undergoing Employment and Suitability tests at the APG.

The demonstration was staged particularly for the 80 members of the Department of Defense's Joint Civilian Orientation Conference who stopped there on their tour of Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps activities. These outstanding industrialists, business men and government officials stayed at Eglin where they later were given special showings of equipment and aircraft including the Lockheed C-130 "Hercules" in flight, the Lockheed F-104A being tested in the Climatic Hangar at 65 degrees below zero, and indoctrination flights in the T-33 jet trainer. Following a banquet in their honor they left for Ft. Benning, Ga., to witness the Army phase of their conference.

Other guests came from all over the country. More than 100 visiting aircraft landed at Eglin Main Field and at auxiliary No. 1, at intervals of three to five minutes during the morning. Among the visitors were Under Secretary of the Air Force J. H. Douglas, Assistant Secretary L. S. Garlock; General O. P. Weyland, USAF, TAC commander; General William G. Wyman, USA, Commander of the Continental Army Command; Lt. Gen. Charles B. Stone, III, Commander of the Continental Air Command, RADM. Harold M. Briggs, USN, Deputy Commander of the Armed Forces Staff College; members of the Aircraft Industries Association Standards Committee; and many other groups included students from the Air University at Maxwell AFB, Ala., Senators, Representatives, etc.

The power-packed show opened with a sonic boom from a flight of North American F-100's and closed with a train drop of bombs from a Convair B-36.

Air Force personnel assigned to perform the various missions of the Firepower Demonstration were:

Capt. Eugene M. Faber, 1st Lt. C. R. Coplin, Capt. William S. Snyder, 1st Lt. L. Johnston, Capt. R. F. Ronca and 1st Lt. G. R. Magathan.

AN F-100 "SUPER SABRE" releases a 1,000 pound bomb as it climbs skyward during the "toss bombing" demonstration at Eglin AFB. The aircraft approaches the target low, pulls up, and releases the bomb as it passes the 60 degree point of its climb. As the bomb follows its trajectory to the target, the aircraft executes an "Immelmann" and flies out of range of the bomb blast.

AF Meets JCS Targets For Army Says Secretary Quarles To Guard

SECRETARY Donald A. Quarles has declared that the Air Force "is equipped and prepared" to meet JCS requirements for strategic and tactical Army airlift.

Speaking to the 7th General Conference of the National Guard Association at Spokane, Wash., on 9 Oct., Mr. Quarles added that "we are developing and procuring more modern and higher performance aircraft especially designed for Army assault airlift, and we will make a determined effort to meet the future airlift requirements of the streamlined Army divisions as they evolve."

During recent months, Army spokesmen have stated that there is a lack of sufficient airlift to meet modern requirements.

Taking note of such charges, Secretary Quarles told the Guard conference:

"TO FIT THE BEST capabilities of the Services together with maximum efficiency is not always easy. The processes of trying to achieve the best defense team sometimes result in issues that are publicized as inter-Service conflicts.

"Perhaps they are conflicts, but I believe they are differences among sincere men trying to decide what is best for the defense of the nation. In a way these 'conflicts' may be compared to the conflict in one man's mind as he tries to decide what is best for his family.

"One of the so-called conflicts that has attracted considerable attention recently is the airlift which the Air Force provides for the Army. First I would like to explain that all three of the services have huge airlift requirements and that the Joint Chiefs of Staff are responsible for reviewing and screening these requirements and for establishing relative priority among them. In the case of Army airlift the requirements fall into two categories—strategic and tactical airlift.

"Strategic or long-range airlift is the ability to move large military forces and equipment by air over long distances to any combat theater.

"Tactical airlift involves moving units within a theater of operation by means of assault type air transports.

"I CAN ASSURE YOU that the Air Force takes very seriously its responsibility for meeting JCS-approved requirements for both of these airlift categories and that we are working closely with the Army to develop their detailed requirements."

Navy Convenes Two Boards To Choose Lts.

A Navy selection board to pick Regular and Reserve officers who reported to active duty before 1 July 1956 for promotion to the rank of lieutenant will be convened on 23 October.

Eligible for consideration are Line lieutenants (jg) with dates of rank of 1 July 1955 and earlier. Eligible LDO's are those in or senior to the promotion zone which ends with Lt. (jg) Edward R. Fink, USN, Signal No. 26507 in the 1 Jan. 1956 Regular Register, and Lt. (jg) William C. Snell, USNR, Register No. 64938 in the 1955 Reserve Register.

TARs will not be given consideration.

A separate board will be convened on the same date to choose Regular WAVE lieutenants (jg) for increased rank. Line women officers with dates of rank of 31 Dec. 1954 and earlier are eligible.

MAJ. GEN. R. L. VITTRUP, USA, left, the Army's assistant deputy chief of staff for military operations, talks with Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, USA, commander of The Infantry School, during a three-day briefing at Fort Benning. Gen. Vittrup will soon assume duties with Eighth Army in the Far East.

USAFE Schools Iceland to Azores Disaster Aid Machine Action

• All Service parents, but particularly those in the Air Force, will be interested in a new supervisory structure for the education of thousands of USAFE youngsters. This story was obtained in an interview with the new Civilian Superintendent at Wiesbaden, Germany.

• Col. A. H. Bagnulo, USA, District Engineer, reports to Journal readers on the activities of his Eastern Ocean District which supervises construction work for all the Services, including the Coast Guard, from the Azores to Iceland.

• An account of an Air Force-Civil Air Patrol medical emergency assistance exercise at Allentown, Pa., will be another feature of the 20th October issue.

• From Ruislip, England, there will be a story of how the Third Air Force is scoring gains in manpower and dollar economies and is assisting commanders to get their job done better through increased use of electronic devices.

Army Generals Named

LT. GEN. ROBERT M. MONTAGUE, USA, CG, I Corps, U. S. Army Forces, Far East, has been named C-in-C of the Caribbean Command, Quarry Heights, C. Z.

General Montague will leave Korea about 18 Oct. After a period of temporary duty with the Office of the Army Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C., he will assume his new post. He will succeed LT. GEN. WILLIAM K. HARRISON, USA, who will retire on a date to be announced later.

MAJ. GEN. ARTHUR G. TRUDEAU, whose promotion to the rank of Lieutenant General, effective upon his assuming command of I Corps, was announced by the President last week, will assume his new rank and command on 18 Oct.

MAJ. GEN. RILEY F. ENNIS, Deputy Commanding General, Sixth Army, has been designated Deputy Commanding General for Reserve Forces, Sixth Army, in a move designed to strengthen supervision and support of the training of National Guard, Army Reserve and Reserve Officers' Training Corps units in the eight western states, and to more closely coordinate activities of these forces with the Regular Army, it was announced by LT. GEN. ROBERT N. YOUNG, USA, Sixth Army commander.

LT. GEN. BRUCE O. CLARKE, USA, Commanding General of Seventh Army, confers with Col. John S. Blair, right, CO of the 42d Field Artillery Group in Baumholder, Germany, as Lt. Col. Edward J. McGrane, CO of the 601st "Corporal" Missile Battalion looks on. The 42d FA Group is the only Field Artillery Group in Europe composed entirely of special weapons (280mm Atomic Guns and "Corporal" Guided Missiles). (See page 11 of last week's Journal for an account of General Clarke's inspection tour.)

Missile Power In Europe Affects Commands

mand plays a key role in supporting major U. S. Service headquarters in Europe, as follows:

ARMY—General Hodes' USAREUR Headquarters at Heidelberg, which in turn is responsible for Lt. Gen. Bruce Clarke's Seventh Army, which is directed from headquarters at Stuttgart, Germany (THE JOURNAL 6 Oct.).

NAVY—Naval forces under General Gruenther are led by Admiral Walter F. Boone, USN, Commander-in-Chief Naval Forces Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean, whose headquarters at London watches over the Sixth Fleet, led by VAdm. Charles R. Brown, USN, who has another title of Commander, Striking and Support Forces Southern Europe.

AIR FORCE—General Norstad as NATO Deputy for Air gets from EUCOM Headquarters reports on the status of U. S. Air Forces in Europe, commanded by Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, USAF, from headquarters in Wiesbaden, Germany.

In addition, EUCOM also is responsible for supervising the Joint Construction Agency, commanded by Maj. Gen. Bernard L. Robinson, USA (THE JOURNAL 30 June) and the various MAAG organizations, such as the unit at Bonn, Germany, under Maj. Gen. Clarke L. Ruffner, USA (THE JOURNAL 8 Sept.).

General Hodes and his CofS, Maj. Gen. George Honnen, USA, have the fundamental task of assuring the security of all U. S. forces in Europe.

It is this charge which seems most likely to lead to an increased operations role for EUCOM, in comparison with the relatively greater emphasis that has been placed on logistics since establishment of EUCOM in August 1952.

General Decker moved to the EUCOM post this summer from command of the VII Corps in Germany. He replaced General Orval Cook, USAF-Ret.

At EUCOM, General Decker, General Honnen and their all-Service staff have such varied responsibilities as supporting SACEUR and its opposite headquarters, SACLANC, commanded by Admiral Jerauld Wright, USN, at Norfolk, Va., as well as the previously mentioned commands in Europe.

EUCOM also supports certain operations of the Strategic Air Command, whose Commander-in-Chief is General Curtis E. LeMay, USAF, of Offutt AFB, Nebr.

EUCOM coordinates and directs joint logistics and administrative matters for U. S. forces in Europe, and prepares U. S. joint plans in support of SHAPE and assignments from the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

General Decker administers military aspects of the Military Security Program—this includes military aid to Ethiopia and Iran, Portugal and Pakistan—and he is responsible too for the Berlin Command, under Maj. Gen. Charles L. Dasher, USA (THE JOURNAL 15 Sept.).

The English Would Prefer It Quiet, But Roar Of Jets Will Get Worse

THIRD AIR FORCE HDQS.
RUISLIP, ENGLAND

A HIGH density population, the certain advent of faster and louder aircraft, and a unique situation which finds interruptions of silence still another disturbing factor add up to a formidable jet noise problem for leaders of the U. S. Third Air Force in England.

No easy answer is likely.

First of all, there is the matter of England's concentrated population. It averages 829 people per square mile; the average is 201 in France.

In England, it's practically impossible to locate air bases in remote areas. At a number of bases, there are homes right around the runways. This means plenty of jet noise for the occupants.

And this noise is going to get worse, for there is little doubt that higher performance aircraft, such as the powerful North American F-100 Super Sabre with afterburners, soon will be assigned to Third Air Force units.

As if the noise problems confronting Maj. Gen. Roscoe C. Wilson, USAF, and the officers and men of his Third Air Force were not enough as a result of the population concentration and new supersonic planes, there is the unusual on-again-off-again situation created by General Curtis E. LeMay's roving SAC bombers.

The bombers rotate to bases in England from the United States on 90-day TDY missions.

Their arrival brings new noises to an area where a base had been on a standby housekeeping status. The bombers land and shake up the populace.

General Wilson's people and the SAC commanders go all-out to explain what is going on to the local citizenry. Eventually, they win understanding and public support.

That's fine. But then the jet bombers depart and the base is quiet again.

The Englishman and his family once more become accustomed to relative quiet. But in three months or six months, the bombers are back and the whole business starts again.

"This is hard on our nerves, as well as theirs," a Third Air Force community relations expert relates.

That there has been general acceptance of the jet noise throughout England, thereby permitting effective combat training programs, is a tribute to General Wilson's energetic community relations program.

At every opportunity, he stresses to his officers and airmen their role in cementing Anglo-American relations.

The general told THE JOURNAL his program is strengthened by "the invaluable assistance of a powerful ally in meeting our jet noise problem. This ally is our officer and NCO wives clubs," General Wilson explains.

"Third Air Force wives have more contact with the community at large than is possible for our military personnel," General Wilson observes. "It is most convincing when they explain to their English friends at the store or at church socials about the necessity of becoming accustomed to the inconveniences of the jet noise. Since our families in England live among the people, everyone shares the same problem, English and American families alike. Everybody's baby gets awakened."

In addition to the work done by the Wives Club, General Wilson and his top staff officers speak about the jet noise problem whenever they can before Rotary clubs, the British Legion, Royal Air Force Association, English-Speaking Union, the Roundtable Clubs and similar groups.

General Wilson says "it is a big advantage, of course, that here in England there is no language barrier, as is the case in Germany or France."

Another community relations advantage is the fact that Third Air Force units, an atomic striking force of NATO, are under the Royal Air Force.

The close bonds that have been built up between the English people and the Third Air Force are cited by General Wilson as a vital factor in his command's notable reenlistment rate, which has hit as high as 84 per cent and averages better than 40 per cent.

"A man must feel that his life's work is important and he must also feel that he is accepted," says General Wilson. "The English people, bless them, have made our boys feel accepted."

"Sure they mind the noise. Everybody does. But what is most important is the fact that the English know why the Third Air Force planes and those of SAC's 7th Air Division are in their skies. And for that reason, they do everything they can to make our airmen and their families as welcome as possible."

Col. Landon Cox Directs

Sledgehammer Staff

A planning staff for Exercise Sledge Hammer, to be held on the Louisiana maneuver area from 24 April to 24 May 1957, has been appointed at Ft. Polk, La.

Col. Landon G. Cox, USA, G-3, (training), for Fort Polk, has been appointed Chief of the Planning Staff. Lt. Col. Paul H. Dixon, USA, operations officer, will serve as S-3, and Lt. Col. Allen S. Peck, Jr., USA, of Combat Command "C," First Armored Division will plan the S-4 activities.

Maj. Robert H. Strecker, USA, executive officer of the 634th Armored Infantry Battalion is S-1. Maj. Jay D. Carpenter, USA, G-2 for Air, will be S-2. Maj. Robert F. Blume, USA, new arrival at Fort Polk will serve as Assistant S-3 and Maj. J. Forsythe, USA, will work with the S-3 section on special weapons.

Maj. Stuart E. Witty, USA, will handle reports and budget, and Capt. Allan S. Furst, USA, will assist Colonel Peck in the S-4 section.

This staff will serve as a focal point for planning and coordinating the extensive activities necessary to operate a maneuver. The plan for the maneuver will integrate tests as directed by Continental Army Command, as well as tactical exercises for all units.

Army Seeks Changes In Reserve Promotions, Pentagon Considers Bill For 85th Congress

The Defense Department is gathering data from the Services on the need for amendments to the Reserve Officer Personnel Act of 1954.

The Army, it is learned, will advocate 14 substantive changes to ROPA, as follows:

Give constructive credit commensurate with that of their professional contemporaries to officers heretofore transferred to a special branch in the lowest grade, primarily affecting medical officers who served as MSC second lieutenants in the Reserve prior to commissioning as First Lieutenants in the MC.

Authorize constructive credit for officers appointed in a special branch and who have had a previous appointment.

Authorize reappointment of former officers in the grade previously held without giving them credit in excess of that which they would have accrued had they remained officers.

Permit a Reserve officer to be ordered to active duty in a lower grade to participate in a special personnel procurement program.

Retain U. S. Property and Fiscal Officers in an active status until reaching 60 years of age.

Bring ROPA into conformity with the provisions included in the proposed amendment to the Army-Navy Nurses Act of 1947 and in consonance with provisions of law pertaining to regular WAC officers.

Provide that the total years of service requirement for non-unit lieutenant colonels to be considered for promotion parallel RA zones.

Authorize the Secretary to consider unit officers of the Reserve and National Guard for promotion in the same manner prescribed for non-unit officers.

Provide for unit promotion of WAC officers.

Permit Reserve officers transferred from the National Guard to the Army Reserve to be advanced to the highest temporary or permanent grade held in the Army.

Authorize transfer of eligible officers to the Retired Reserve without application.

Provide for a mandatory removal from the Inactive Status List of Standby and Inactive National Guard members because of age or service.

Permit Reserve officers on active duty in general, officer grades to be promoted to the same grade in the Reserve.

Prevent inversion in rank of officers called to active duty.

Assigned To Pentagon

Col. Charles W. G. Rich, USA, who has been selected for promotion to temporary brigadier general (THE JOURNAL 6 Oct.), is slated for assignment to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel at the Pentagon. His reported assignment as Assistant Commander of the 5th Infantry Division was in error.

THIS insignia in gold, symbolizing the activities of the Civil Affairs Military Government Branch of the Army, has been approved for its members by the Department of the Army. The scroll signifies civil affairs, the sword, military government, and these superimposed upon a lighted torch and globe, are a symbol of the assurance of freedom to worldwide people, wherever CA/MG operations are carried out.

Colonel Cron Heads Army Info School

Col. Lucius N. Cron, USA, has assumed duties as Commandant of the Army Information School and Post Commander of Ft. Slocum, N. Y. He succeeds Col. Charles E. Brown, USA, who has departed for an assignment with Headquarters Continental Army Command, Ft. Monro, Va.

Colonel Cron comes to Slocum from Governor's Island where he has been Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration of First Army.

Colonel Cron is the son of Col. A. C. Cron, USA, Ret., 3302 McKinley Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. He is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., Class of 1931, and the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Class of 1948.

Colonel Cron is married to the former Laird Craighill of Leesburg, Va. They have two children: a son, Peyton C., who is in the Army, and a daughter, Cornelia.

1st Div. Society Reunion

An article in THE JOURNAL of 29 Sept. reporting the appointment of Col. Donald McB. Curtis, USA, of Washington, D. C. as chairman of the reunion committee for next year's meeting of the First Division Society, was headed "Heads 1st Div. Security." It should, of course, have said: 1st Div. Society Reunion.

INSURANCE DIVIDENDS SET TO GO

The first dividend in 25 years will be paid in 1957 to policyholders of five-year term U. S. Government Life Insurance (USGLI), which originated in WWI.

Term policyholders will receive about $1 million. Some 330,000 holders of USGLI permanent plan policies will receive approximately $25 million.

The Veterans Administration also announced a $25 million increase in the regular annual 1957 dividend for some five million policyholders of National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) which originated in WWII. This dividend will amount to $210 million, compared with $185 million for 1956, and policyholders will receive proportionately larger sums.

Both the NSLI and USGLI dividends are regular annual dividends, not special dividends. Payments will be made during 1957 on or about the anniversary date of each policy, beginning in January and ending in December 1957.

Policyholders have been requested not to inquire in advance about their dividend payments so as not to delay the processing time.

Readers Misinterpret VA Pension Warning

Last week's JOURNAL carried an announcement that the Veterans Administration is warning widows and children of deceased Servicemen to report immediately any increase in income that would boost their annual income above the legal ceiling.

This has raised some questions in the minds of those who are receiving compensation for service-connected deaths.

The VA makes a distinction between "pensions" and "compensation."

Those widows and children who are receiving payment from the VA for non-service-connected deaths are receiving "Pensions" and they are subject to a legal income ceiling.

Those widows and children receiving payment from the VA for service-connected deaths are receiving "compensation" and are not subject to an income limitation.

Pensioners of WWI, WWII and of the Korean conflict may receive VA pensions only if their annual income from other sources does not exceed $1400 without dependents or $2700 with minor children.

Riley Hospital Accredited

An accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals was presented last week to Col. Milford Kubin, USA, Post Surgeon and Commanding Officer of the U. S. Army Hospital, and his staff, Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. Willis S. Matthews, USA, Commanding General at Fort Riley, made the presentation.

U. S. Navy and U. S. Marine Corps

Capt. Stahr Heads New Family MedCare Div.

Capt. Guy E. Stahr, MC, USN, has assumed duties in the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery as head of the newly established office which deals with Dependent Medical Care.

Captain Stahr reported to his new post from the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., where he was Commanding Officer of the U.S. Naval Medical School.

Chaplain Parkinson Heads Ecclesiastical Relations

Chaplain William W. Parkinson, USN, recently returned from Kwajalein in the Pacific, has reported for duty as the Head of the Ecclesiastical Relations Branch, Chaplains Division in the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Washington, D. C.

He will be responsible for maintaining liaison with civilian religious groups, and with humanitarian and welfare agencies. He will work with Public Information offices of the Navy in letting the public know the activities of the Navy in the religious realm. He will edit the Navy Chaplains Bulletin and obtain information for the Corps History.

Chaplain Parkinson, a Methodist clergyman of the California-Nevada Conference, received his B.A. degree from Ohio State, a divinity degree from Union Theological Seminary, New York, and a Doctor of Education degree from Columbia University. He had post-doctoral study at the University of Zurich, Switzerland.

Reserve Board Meets To Choose Brig. Gens.

A board to choose Marine Corps Reserve colonels for advancement to one-star rank will be convened at Headquarters on 22 October.

Maj. Gen. Littleton W. T. Waller, jr., USMCR-Ret., will serve as President of the board which will select inactive duty officers.

Two Attack Carriers Become Support Ships

The Navy has reclassified two attack aircraft carriers, the USS Wasp (CVA 18) and the USS Essex (CVA 9).

Both have been designated anti-submarine support aircraft carriers (CVS's). They will, however, retain their present hull numbers.

The effective date for the Wasp's switch is 1 Nov. 1956; the Essex changes her designation on 15 March 1957.

Nobody Wants "Big E"; Thrown On Scrap Pile

The aircraft carrier, USS Enterprise, has been declared "unfit for further naval service," and is to be sold for scrap.

Assistant Navy Secretary Raymond H. Fogler signed an order authorizing the Navy to accept sealed bids for the famous "Big E."

For the past several years the Navy has made an effort to establish the ship as a permanent memorial of the war against Japan. This was not found feasible. The maintenance cost of the ship as a memorial would be about $150,000 annually. Neither the Navy nor any state or city government desired to assume the expense.

Modernization of the ship was not considered to be a good investment since the Enterprise is smaller than the 27,000-ton Essex class carrier. The Essex class is scheduled to be mothballed gradually, as the 45,000-ton Midway class is converted to handle modern planes.

The highest bidder above the Navy's $1,000,000 appraised value will be awarded the ship.

The "Big E" took part in every major battle of the Pacific except the Battle of the Coral Sea. The Japanese Navy announced on six different occasions that she had been sunk. Actually, the Enterprise never was inoperative during her four years of fighting.

She is located at Bayonne, N. J. in the Reserve Fleet.

Senior Women Marines Will Switch Commands

Lt. Col. Elsie E. Hill, USMC (W), Commanding Officer, Women Marine Recruit Training Battalion, Parris Is., S. C., and Lt. Col. Barbara J. Bishop, USMC (W), Head, Women's Branch, Division of Reserves, and Deputy Director of Women Marines, have been ordered to swap commands.

A 1947 graduate of Temple University, Colonel Hill has been a Marine since 1943. This will be her second tour of duty at HQMC. She served as Assistant to the Officer-in-Charge of the Women Reserve Branch from December 1948 until April 1949.

Permanent Rank Goes To 7 USMC (W) Officers

A selection board has picked seven women Marine officers for promotion to permanent rank.

Heading the list is Capt. Doris V. Kleberger, USMC (W), who has been named to serve in the permanent rank of major.

The officers listed below were chosen for permanent captain's rank:

Eileen F. Parker Valeria F. Hilgart
Constance Baker Elena B. Curran
Virginia A. Hajek Mary G. Johansen

The board, headed by Brig. Gen. Edward A. Montgomery, USMC, Commander, MCAB, Cherry Point, N. C., convened at HQMC on 28 August.

Marines Say Ban On Families In Pacific Will Stick; Headquarters Officials Tell Reasons For Controversial Order

THE Marine Corps is standing firm on its ban against families accompanying, or later joining officers and men assigned to Fleet Marine Force units in Japan and Okinawa.

Headquarters officers told THE JOURNAL that there is no reason to believe General Randolph McC. Pate, CMC, who is now en route to the area for an inspection tour, will revoke or modify his original order.

A revocation, it was pointed out, is highly unlikely in view of the Commandant's determination to maintain a "force-in-readiness" in the area which can be mobilized for combat within a matter of hours.

Defense officials late this week said that Assistant Secretary Carter L. Burgess, who leaves 16 Oct. for a Pacific inspection trip, is inclined at present to agree with the Marine Corps action.

General Pate has told Congress that "this part of our force-in-readiness is within easy striking distance of all potential trouble spots in the Far East, it is not encumbered by dependents or garrison-type paraphernalia, and needs only the proper signal to swing into action."

The HQMC Order—No. 1751.2, dated 1 March 1956—states:

"The Commandant does not consider the military situation appropriate to permit

TOP NAVY REVIEW

A possibility developed this week that the Navy may reverse or modify the Marine Corps ban on families joining their husbands in the Far East.

A spokesman in the office of Assistant Navy Secretary Albert Pratt told THE JOURNAL that the Personnel and Reserve Forces Chief "has the matter under consideration."

dependents to accompany, or later join overseas, members of Fleet Marine Force units assigned to the Far East, less subordinate units stationed in Hawaii. Furthermore, it is not considered appropriate for such members to move their household effects or automobiles to areas where dependents are not permitted."

The policy decision was based on the following three factors:

- The continuing need for Marine FMF to be prepared for immediate redeployment on very short notice;

- Adequate housing for dependents on a nondiscriminatory basis does not exist; and,

- The long wait for housing in areas where even limited quarters are available.

Realizing that it is a hardship for officers and men to be away from their families for extended periods of time, the Commandant set a 14-month maximum on Far East tours of duty.

TWO MONTHS AFTER the original order was issued, Headquarters reemphasized its position.

"Much correspondence is being received at this Headquarters," a bulletin of 3 May stated, "from members of Congress and from dependents of members of Fleet Marine Force units in the Far East requesting information regarding dependent travel to Okinawa and Japan." The bulletin told all responsible officers to direct the provisions of the original order to the attention of officers and men receiving assignments to the Far East.

Despite General Pate's command, and the subsequent reminder, reports reached HQMC that a growing number of wives and children were arriving in Japan.

Although wives and children were ineligible for military transportation, the reports indicated, the CMC order was being circumvented by having families arrive in the restricted area on Japanese visas as "tourists."

The reports further indicated that officers and men who had their families join them in "tourist" status, in violation of the order, were assigned, for the most part, to the First Marine Air Wing, commanded by Brig. Gen. David F. O'Neill, USMC.

Lt. Gen. Christian F. Schilt, USMC, Director of Aviation, upon learning that the Commandant's order was being ignored by his command took action in the form of a letter to all commanding generals and aviation station commanders assigned to Air FMF Pacific.

VIOLATIONS OF THE ORDER, General Schilt wrote to his subordinates, "seem to implicate only the personnel of the 1st MAW. This naturally will tend to give the Commandant the impression that his non-aviation commanders are putting more energy and attention to carrying out Marine Corps policies than are his aviation commanders. I want to initiate action to arrest this impression immediately, forcefully and with finality."

It is unlikely that officers and men assigned the reinforced regiment of the Third Division in the area would have "tourists" visit them since the entire unit is scheduled for a move to Okinawa.

General Schilt told his commanders to take "vigorous, continuing action, without delay" to inform all officers and men of the policy on Far East dependent travel.

"I hope," the Aviation Director stated, "your action on this letter will produce the desired results in carrying out the Commandant's policy, regarding dependents in the Far East. Otherwise it may be necessary for the Commandant to take drastic action, in the form of an immediate change of station and awarding unsatisfactory marks in cooperation and loyalty, to those who continue to flout his policy."

Upon receipt of General Schilt's letter, the 1st MAW Commander, General O'Neill, took swift action. He passed the word down the line to his juniors who, in turn, passed the word to their wives that they were in the area in violation of the order.

About 250 officers and men with an average of two dependents each were found to be in violation of the order. The 500 "tourists" have been given an opportunity to make use of Navy MSTs ships, on a space available basis, for their journey home.

REPORTS FROM THE FAR EAST state that many Marines and their wives are highly indignant about the Marine Corps action. Some take the view that they have the right to travel anywhere they choose on an American passport. The families arrived in the restricted areas on Japanese visas.

The Japanese Embassy in Washington states that a visa issued to a tourist is valid for 60 days. The embassy said that it was not aware that the visas being extended for longer periods by the Japanese Government.

The Commandant's order says that families should not "accompany or later join" Marines assigned to the Far East.

The Service wives, however, reasoned that they had a right to go anywhere they chose if they obtained visas and paid for their own transportation.

Lt. Gen. Edwin H. Pollock, USMC, Commander General, Fleet Marine Pacific, reportedly has told General O'Neill to notify all affected officers that they will be in violation of the order if their wives stay longer than 60 days. After 60 days tourist status runs out.

THE MARINE WIVES are said to be particularly incensed because there are thousands of other Service families living in the area.

The Army, Navy and Air Force officers and men stationed in the area, however, serve much longer tours of duty than Marines. Other Services keep men on station for as long as two and three years.

Marine Headquarters points out that they are provided military housing for dependents. The Marine Corps, on the other hand, has budgeted for a limited number of family accommodations. These quarters are assigned to non-FMF officers and men who serve on Embassy duty. These officers and men serve for two and three year periods.

In addition to pointing up the fact that the purpose of the order is to maintain a combat-ready force, Headquarters expressed concern that families in the restricted areas cannot be adequately taken care of in the event of emergencies. Since the Corps has budgeted for only a handful of non-FMF Marine families, it cannot provide proper medical care for FMF "tourist" wives and children. The problem of providing needed schooling for children in this situation was another detrimental factor in the decision to keep families out of the area, HQMC said.

The wait for American standard housing is equally critical for all the Services. A check with the Pentagon shows that Servicemen are required to wait at least a year before they find housing for their dependents.

Those who do not avail themselves of military housing are required to make large outlays of money to bring the Japanese domiciles up to American standards.

As of 31 Jan. 1956 there were approximately 15,000 Marine officers and men stationed in Japan and on Okinawa.

Studies have shown that when the machine duplicates characteristics of a WWII fighter, the pilot has little difficulty keeping the image and ball in line. His problem becomes greater when the machine duplicates a modern supersonic fighter flying at about six thousand feet. When characteristics of future aircraft are reproduced, things get really bad for the pilot. This is especially so during the period when the plane reenters the

Fighting 48th Receives Safety Award For Two Years Of Perfect Jet Flying

LANGLEY AFB
VIRGINIA

CIRCLING the equator would be a minor feat for aircrews of the 48th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, Langley AFB, Va.

For the past two years, the squadron's jets have roared into the sky nearly 15,000 times, screaming seaward to track down unidentified planes approaching the coast of the United States.

Strung out, end to end, these flights add up to enough air miles for 200 trips around the center of the earth.

But more remarkable is the fact that the flights—all 15,000—have been accident free.

In the words of Brig. Gen. Joseph D. C. Caldara, USAF, Director of Flight Safety Research, this record—a "first" for ADC—is an "admirable contribution to the combat capability of the USAF," and an "enviable achievement worthy of the highest praise."

Praise was forthcoming this week as the 48th, commanded by Lt. Col. Phillip N. Loring, USAF, received the Air Force's two-year Flying Safety Award.

CONGRATULATIONS came from Lt. Gen. J. H. Atkinson, Air Defense Commander, from Brig. Gen. James McCaully, Commander of the Eastern Air Defense Force, from Brig. Gen. Emmett F. Yost, Commander of the 85th Air Division (Defense), of which the 48th is a unit, from Lockheed Aircraft, builders of the F94C "Starfires" in which most of the flights were made, and from Pratt and Whitney Aircraft, which engineered the Starfire engine.

Men of the 48th and their families were honored at a ceremony on the squadron's flight line parking ramp at Langley on 8 Oct.

During a formal review, General McCaully presented the safety award to Colonel Loring and M/Sgt. Leonard W. Loomis, the squadron line chief.

An inscribed model of an F94C also was presented to the squadron by Lockheed representative Joseph H. Morris and Pratt and Whitney representative Stanley Taylor. The two firms jointly sponsored a buffet luncheon for men of the squadron, their families and guests.

GENERAL YOST, who was present on the reviewing stand, stated that honors for the record chalked up by the pilots and observers belong equally to enlisted crew chiefs, line chiefs, and maintenance men of the 48th.

The squadron is the first to surpass a two-year safety record since reorganization of ADC in January 1951.

In setting the mark, the 48th flew more than 18,000 hours, including about 15,000 in Starfires, more than 2800 in Lockheed T-33 jet trainers and about 600 in conventional B-25s.

General Atkinson, in a special message read during the ceremonies, said the 48th had turned in a "truly commendable" performance in becoming "the first squadron in the Air Defense Command to establish an accident-free record for two consecutive years while flying in all types of weather and on a 24-hour, around the clock basis."

Some of these flights were not without mishap, officers of the squadron say. There were times when the record could have been marred.

On one such occasion, one of the squadron's planes went into a spin and the radar observer ejected. Skill and luck held, however, and the pilot brought the plane safely to earth. The radar observer also escaped unscathed.

Other near-misses were recorded, but none near enough to spoil the record.

As one of the ADC units guarding the air approaches to the U.S., the 48th operates hand-in-glove with the 771st Aircraft Control & Warning Squadron, Cape Charles, Va.

WHEN AN "UNKNOWN" aircraft shows up in the sector assigned to the squadron, the 771st picks up the plane on its powerful ground radar and alerts the 48th. The fighter-interceptor squadron has its planes in the air in slightly more than three minutes, winging toward the area of potential trouble.

Most of the "trouble" thus far has come from Navy planes operating off carriers, but if the unknown craft ever proves to be an enemy there's little chance that it will make the coast before being overtaken by the 48th.

Like other ADC fighter squadrons, the 48th maintains a 24-hour alert vigil with aircrews and planes ready to become airborne in a matter of minutes.

In addition to the alert hangar and the constant alert, there is continuous training of aircrews and ground crews in routine flying. There is rocketry training in which 2.75 inch "Mighty Mouse" rockets are fired at six by 30 foot banner type targets. And, also, there is the slow paced and seemingly incidental things such as ground school and aircraft identification. And there is the never-ending maintenance.

In combination, these day-to-day activities have paid off in a brilliant new record for the 48th.

Colonel Loring and other officers of the squadron also give credit to the patience and forbearance of the wives of the 48th and accord them a full share in the safety achievement.

For the award ceremony, four of the wives, Mrs. Walter L. Haug, Mrs. Robert C. Riggsby, Mrs. Alva D. Henehan and Mrs. Gerald G. Bury stitched together four parachutes to form a gigantic banner with tall, black letters reading: "The Fighting 48th. First In ADC."

FOR THE AIR FORCE TACTICAL AIR COMMAND

Air Force RB-66 powered by Allison J71 Turbo-Jet Engines

AND TURBO-PROP POWER

Here you see the Tactical Air Command's newest reconnaissance bomber—the all-weather twin-jet Douglas RB-66.

It carries a payload of nuclear or conventional bombs—which it can wing at 600-700 mph to targets dictated by the nation's needs.

It packs a full complement of camera equipment—which also makes it a valuable reconnaissance tool for air intelligence.

And in pods under its wings it boasts a pair of Allison J71 Turbo-Jet engines—each producing 10,000 pounds' thrust without augmentation—which take it to altitudes over 40,000 feet.

Now winning its wings for reliability and dependability with the 363rd Tactical Reconnaissance Wing at Shaw Air Force Base, S. C., the Allison-powered RB-66 carries a three-man crew as it goes on its peace-maintaining missions.

The Allison-powered Douglas RB-66 is another example of how continuous engine development—both Turbo-Jet and Turbo-Prop—is helping keep America first in the air.

Income Taxes. High among the list of suggestions made by the Marine Corps Non-Commissioned Officers' Committee for the benefit of the Cordiner pay study group was a proposal that active duty Servicemen be given a $1500 special exemption from the Federal Income Tax and that retired pay be fully exempted from such taxation.

These are cogent ideas which, if not acted upon by the Cordiner Committee, should be taken up independently in Congress. During WWII such a special military exemption was granted all service personnel and during the Korean conflict men serving in the combat zone were given a degree of income tax exemption. Between wars this consideration has been denied, but the fact is that the need for this relief is just as great, and often greater, in periods of so-called peace. The extra expenses of military service, uniforms, school expenses for often-moved children, sometimes the need of maintaining two domiciles, special levies for entertaining visiting VIPs, and many other living costs peculiar to service life merit such a consideration. Retired personnel, whose incomes in relation to their active duty pay have been reduced more proportionately than before WWII, are particularly hard hit by taxes.

Hand In Glove. There is a close relationship between the performance of the markedly advanced modern combat aircraft as demonstrated at Eglin AFB, Fla. (story on page 2), the remarkable safety record of the 48th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Langley AFB, Va., (story on page 9), and the triennial inspection of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' Langley Laboratory as reported on the first page of this issue.

For the past 41 years the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, an independent agency of the Government, has been carrying out its instructions to "supervise and direct the scientific study of the problems of flight, with a view to their scientific solution," and to "direct and conduct research and experiment in aeronautics." Langley, the laboratory opened for inspection this week, is NACA's oldest, largest, and most diversified research center. Since it started operations with two open-cockpit Army biplanes, and since its first wind tunnel was built in 1919, it has been the birthplace of many of the principles which have contributed to the higher performance and improved safety factors of today's military and civil aircraft.

Some of NACA's achievements are widely known. John Stack and his associates at Langley Laboratory were awarded the 1951 Collier Trophy in recognition of their contributions to transonic research. In 1948 Dr. Stack also won a share of the trophy for his work on the X-1 research plane. Another Langley scientist, Richard T. Whitcomb, was awarded the 1954 Collier Trophy for the Area Rule—the "something-for-nothing" discovery whereby speeds in the transonic and supersonic range were vastly increased without any additional power or gadgets, just by constricting the waist of the fuselage.

Many other NACA discoveries and developments are scarcely known outside the industry. It is not too much to state that nothing flies which does not owe something to NACA research. Its facilities are open to all the Armed Services for missiles as well as aircraft, to the air frame and engine manufacturers, who use them constantly, and to civil aviation. Yet its operation is only a small nick in the tax dollar. In the past 12 years its expenditures have totalled only a little over $600,000,000 or a fraction more than $4 for each American.

Today's achievements are past for NACA; the sights in its laboratories are now trained on the distant future. Out of the research in which it is now engaged and in cooperation with industries and manufacturers and their research and development facilities, and the Armed Forces and their R&D activities, will come our aircraft and air defenses of the future. Without such research and without such cooperation we would be tied to the present.

In Wives' Hands! Marine Corps headquarters, in threatening "drastic action" against officers in Japan whose wives have gone there as "tourists," paying their own way, poses a new problem in Service life; can an officer be punished for actions of his wife which are entirely legal and honorable

Medal of Honor Convention

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The first National Convention of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society to be held in Lakeland, Fla., 9 to 14 Nov., will have approximately 150 Medal of Honor Holders in attendance.

An elaborate and entertaining program has been planned for the Convention.

All Medal of Honor Holders will be flown to Florida by the Air Force (space available) free of charge. This privilege does not extend to the wives or guests of the Medal of Honor Holders. However, upon arrival in Lakeland, all expenses for the Medal of Honor Holders and their wives or guest will be assumed by the Congressional Medal of Honor Convention Association. This will include all local transportation, hotels, meals, entertainment, etc.

It will be satisfactory to remind all Medal of Honor Holders to write Lt. Gen. Leon W. Johnson's Office, NATO, Room 2E924, The Pentagon, Washington 25, D. C., for information. This invitation is extended to all holders of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Respectfully,

Attention: Hoover Commission

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It seems a little amusing that any civilian co-operative should be so sacred and that the similar co-operative effort of the Armed Services to benefit their members through post exchange and commissary operations should be so sinful.

In industrial and commercial organizations it is normal to use the ability of the organization to buy at wholesale for the benefit of its members—even to the purchase of automobiles on a fleet contract for personnel using them largely on company business. The charge to the company member is normally the billed cost. The organization generally pockets the two per cent discount for cash as its sole reimbursement and considers any further cost to be an excellent investment in employee good will.

The civilian organizations, of course, do not have the unremitting attention of the various groups that never miss a bet on ways to nibble away at the strength of the Armed Forces. It would be rather simple for these to promote among the civilian service organizations near an Armed Forces installation an idea of their profits if all the pay roll were spent off the post. And the cure is so even though in conflict with Headquarters policy?

As reported in the story on page 7 of this issue, the wives who have gone there by commercial transportation and under regular passports are indignant that Headquarters is trying to make them come home. They cannot see why they are denied the privilege of paying for a right enjoyed free by all the other services in the Far East.

The Marine Corps order telling them not to go gives as its reasons "budgetary considerations, operational readiness, and efficient personnel utilization." The wives, we suspect, will place more blame on the first mentioned reason. On the other hand, the Marine Corps which says they are there illegally, is now offering to bring them home free on MSTs ships. It is to be hoped that the Marine Corps, Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas and Assistant Defense Secretary Carter L. Burgess resolve the family travel problem quickly.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—If those members of Congress who are criticizing the number of retirements for physical disability in the Armed Forces would examine the situation closely they would realize that such retirements are the logical result of the strain of modern war. The medical records of both services are replete with cases of heart trouble and similar ailments growing out of the terrific pace imposed upon leaders who carried heavy responsibilities. One case—that of Maj. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.—brought this strikingly to public attention when he fell dead from a heart attack just after his division landed in Normandy.

50 Years Ago—Among other reforms which he is instituting, Lord Kitchener is revising the army veterinary system in India. He was surprised to find that there were two different systems obtaining, with two different organizations of officers, one for peace and one for war. A frequent result has been that veterinary doctors whose experience has been limited to horses have been in charge of some thousands of camels.

90 Years Ago—Reports from Montana say that "the trains arrived after a continuous series of battles with the Indians; the new Bridger's road cut-off was said to be 500 miles, when it is over 800 miles; some of the roads were impassable, and the whole route was infested with Indians. We thought it an impossibility to get through, and had to fight our way through. We had plenty of game, such as buffalo, bear, antelope, deer, prairie chickens, and trout."

easy! Just look! Here in Section 8 of the Constitution, under Powers of Congress is paragraph 14, "To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces." They haven't any other rights and most of them can't vote. What are you waiting for?

Maybe it doesn't happen this way but it seems awfully suspicious.

Nurse Corps Equity

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

We nurses are delighted to read that the Pentagon has not given up and that Congress will be asked to vote for legislation in 1957 which will put us on a more equal promotion footing with other officers.

We say it's about time. The Army appears to be doing something on its own with the present selection board, but apparently not many promotions will be made to field grades. Still and all, we recognize that progress is being made.

What we hope is that the Defense Department will send the new legislation to Congress immediately after the new session begins. Then, maybe, the Committees can act on the nurse bill first.

Complete Text Of Pentagon Explanation On New Service Social Security Law

Many Military Families Will Want To Save This Information For Future Reference

THE following is the complete text of Circular 608-18, issued by the Army, which gives pertinent details on the new Social Security legislation for all members of the Armed Services. The new law goes into effect on 1 January.

This Circular, one of the most comprehensive official statements on the Social Security legislation, is published in its entirety because of the great impact the new law will have on financial planning by all military families.

It is suggested that this article be clipped and filed for future reference.

1. GENERAL. The Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance program (referred to as Social Security) provides a retirement income for personnel who work in employment or who are self-employed in fields covered by social security. It also provides benefits for other members of the family based on the Social Security account of the working member while he is receiving benefits and after his death. The program requires that social security tax deductions be made during the period of employment to provide for benefits in the event earnings are cut off by old age, death, or disability. Each individual in covered employment is given an account number, and a record of the individual's life earnings is maintained at the Social Security Administration headquarters, Baltimore, Maryland. The amount of the social security benefits depends on three things: individual's earnings, number of dependents, and the age of each member of the family. Under amendments to the Social Security Act, personnel presently in the service, as well as veterans with military service between 16 September 1940 and 31 December 1956, were granted wage credits under the Social Security program because of their military service. Public Law 881, 84th Congress, the Servicemen's and Veterans' Benefits Act, provides that effective 1 January 1957, military personnel will be covered under the social security program on the same basis as personnel working in civilian life. This circular is designed to provide members of the Army with general information concerning benefits to which they may become entitled and should not be considered to constitute a complete explanation of all details of social security legislation.

2. DEFINITIONS. The following definitions are generally brief summaries of statutory definitions and are furnished in order to provide more fully an understanding of the terms used herein.

a. Covered employment. Covered employment is employment (including self-employment) included in the social security program. The categories of employment and professions included in this program are too numerous to be included in this circular. However, more than 9 out of 10 people employed in the United States are covered by this program.

b. Eligible member. An eligible member is an individual who works in covered employment for a sufficient period of time to qualify himself or his family for benefits under the program.

c. Quarter of coverage. A quarter of coverage is a 3-month period beginning 1 January, 1 April, 1 July, or 1 October of each calendar year in which an individual is paid $50 or more in wages, or is credited with $100 in self-employment net earnings.

d. Insured status. When an eligible member has worked for the required number of calendar quarters to qualify either himself or his survivors for benefits, he is in an insured status.

e. Currently insured member. A currently insured member is an individual who, upon becoming entitled to social security benefits or upon death, has 6 quarters of coverage out of 13 quarters preceding that date.

f. Fully insured member. An individual who has worked in covered employment for 10 years is fully insured for all purposes. If he reaches age 65 or dies before 1971, he will need less than 40 quarters (fig. 1).

g. Average wage. The average wage is the average monthly earnings of an individual over a certain period of time.

h. Wage credits. Wage credits are the credits granted gratuitously to certain military personnel (par. 3a) or for which payroll deductions (or contributions by the self-employed) are made.

i. Drop-out period. The drop-out period is the period up to 5 years of little or no earnings which may be excluded from the total number of years used in computing the average monthly wage.

j. Wage freeze. A wage freeze is a privilege extended to an individual who is disabled and, at his request, may have his years during the period of impairment excluded in computing his average monthly wage. This is in addition to the drop-out period indicated above.

k. Types of benefits.

(1) Retirement benefits. Retirement benefits are payments to which the worker and his wife will be entitled upon reaching certain age requirements (per 4c).

(2) Disability payments. Disability payments are payments authorized eligible members who are 50 or over and under 65 years of age who are too severely disabled to engage in substantial work and the disability is expected to be of long-continued and indefinite duration.

(3) Survivors benefits.—Survivors benefits are benefits authorized the survivors of an eligible member.

(4) Reduced benefits. Reduced benefits are benefits paid in a smaller amount to a retired working woman or wife of a retired worker at an age below age 65 but not below age 62, at her own election.

(5) Lump sum payment to survivors. The lump sum payment to survivors is usually 3 times the worker's monthly amount but not less than $90 or more than $255 payable for assistance in funeral expenses of a currently or fully insured member.

3. WAGE CREDIT PERIODS. a. Gratuitous wage credits. Free wage credits of $160 per month were provided for each month of active service, during the period 16 September 1940 to 31 December 1956 to military personnel regardless of grade or pay. This period was subdivided into two separate and distinct periods for computation purposes: the World War II period from 16 September 1940 to 24 July 1947 and the post World War II period from 25 July 1947 to 31 December 1956. The deciding factor in determining if military wage credits may be used for either of these two periods is whether any service was directly credited in such period, in establishing eligibility for, or, in computing the amount of service retirement pay. If any part of service during these two periods was used for this purpose, gratuitous wage credits cannot be granted for the period so used. Those individuals who are on active duty on or after 1 January 1957 will be granted gratuitous wage credits ($160) for each month of active service rendered between 1 January 1951 and 31 December 1956, even though such personnel receive retired pay from the Army based in part on that service.

(1) For social security purposes, credits for the military service outlined above count the same as wages in civilian employment. When an application is made (in the event of a member's death, or upon reaching age 65, or 62, if a woman), the Social Security Administration will obtain proof of the individual's military service from the original discharge certificate or The Department of the Army. Military service wage credits will then be added to any wage credits earned in work covered by social security before and/or after the period of military service. The following categories of personnel are eligible for these FREE MILITARY WAGE CREDITS:

(a) Personnel with military service between 16 September 1940 and 31 December 1956 who are discharged, released, or separated under conditions other than dishonorable after active service of 90 days or more and whose service during this period is not used in establishing his eligibility for retirement or in computing his retirement pay.

(b) Personnel who completed 29½ years active service prior to 25 July 1947 and who serve on active duty during the period between 25 July 1947 and 31 December 1956.

(c) Personnel who serve on active duty between 16 September 1940 and 31 December 1956, who retire by reason of physical disability and whose retired pay is computed on percentage of disability.

(d) Officers with service prior to 12 November 1918 and active duty service between 16 September 1940 and 31 December 1956 whose retired pay is computed on other than years of service.

b. Taxed wage credits. Effective 1 January 1957 the basic pay of personnel will count toward old-age and survivors insurance protection for the serviceman and his family

TWO SPECIAL PROVISIONS

A person who reaches 65 before 1 October 1959, or a person who dies after 31 March 1957, and before 1 October 1959, will be fully insured even if he does not meet the "fully insured" requirements shown above.

Every calendar quarter after 1954 and until he reaches 65 or dies is a quarter of coverage except four and on the same basis as personnel working in civilian life in jobs covered by social security.

(1) If the individual has enough quarters of coverage under the law when he reaches retirement age (age 65, age 62 for women), he and his family will become eligible to social security benefits. Military personnel can receive these benefits from social security in addition to their Army retirement pay. Social security tax to pay for the program will be made by payroll deductions of 2½ per cent of the basic pay. This rate will increase gradually each 5 years (½ of 1%), beginning in 1960, until 1975, when it will be 4½ per cent. Personnel will pay tax only on the first $4,200 of the basic pay each year. Thus the total tax collected from the individual during the year will not exceed $94.50 at the present rate of deduction. The Government as the employer will pay an equal amount. For example, under this program the monthly social security tax for a private (E-2) with less than 2 years' service would be $1.93; a corporal with over 4 years' service would be $3.60; a master sergeant with over 8 years' service would be $5.70; a second lieutenant with under 2 years' service would be $5.00; a captain with over 10 years' service would be $9.83; a colonel with over 14 years' service would be $14.22; a general with over 22 years' service would be $22.99. When an individual has received $4,200 in basic pay, no further tax deduction is made during the remainder of the year.

(2) The law requires that these deductions be made and there are no provisions for this requirement to be waived. Further, there is no provision to refund to an individual any deductions that have been made from his earnings due to the fact that he has not received a sufficient number of credits under social security to become eligible for benefits.

4. ELIGIBILITY FOR SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS. To qualify for monthly retirement payments beginning at age 65 (age 62 for women), or to make payments possible for survivors in case of the member's death, an individual must have a certain number of quarters of coverage, based on date of birth (fig. 1). In addition, certain age requirements must be met (fig. 2).

a. Credits. Personnel are credited with one quarter of coverage for every calendar quarter or part of a calendar quarter in which they serve on active duty. The number of quarters of coverage is used only in determining whether or not an individual is eligible for benefits (fig. 1). The amount of the monthly benefits is computed from the average monthly earnings, and the accumulation of an excess number of quarters of coverage will not increase the benefits; however, by continuing to work under covered employment after sufficient quarters of coverage for entitlement have been earned, an individual may obtain a higher average monthly wage, thus increasing the monthly benefits. Individuals who do not have sufficient quarters of coverage to be fully insured when they reach retirement age may continue to work in order to acquire the sufficient number. Quarters need not be earned consecutively. Personnel may have earned quarters of coverage by working as an employee at any time after 1936 in covered employment, by covered self-employment after 1950, or by military service between 16 September 1940 and Lump sum death benefit.

*Upon the death of an eligible member, a lump-sum payment, in addition to any monthly payments, may be made to the widow or widower if they were living together. If there is no eligible widow or widower, then the person or persons who paid the burial expenses can be repaid up to the amount of the lump sum. The lump sum may be as much as three times the eligible member's benefit amount, but not more than $255.

CORDINER COMMITTEE SOURCES report a change in approach by the Chairman. It's still too early for a clear-cut forecast, but authoritative word is that President Cordiner of the General Electric Company now feels stronger about the need for a pay hike than was the case when he began the comprehensive study. Visits to Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps units in the field, where he has had a chance to see officers and men employing new high-speed, high-yield weapons, have convinced Mr. Cordiner that significant pay increases in certain categories are essential to the defense program. AT THE OUTSET, he gave relatively more stress to so-called "prestige" factors. These will be given great attention in the Committee's report to SecDef Wilson; but the need for remedial pay action will be highlighted.

THE MARINE CORPS ORDER about families in the Far East (Page 6) and the need for Fleet Marine Force units to be ready for instant deployment is certain to provoke comment among Army and Air Force officers and NCO's. They will wonder why the Marine requirement for quick movement is different from that of the other Services. SOME PEOPLE ARE WONDERING if the Commandant's ban on FMF families in the Far East is linked to a prospective shift of additional Marine Corps elements, either to Hawaii or the United States. There were late week indications that SecNav Thomas might move into the confused situation.

THE ARMY RESERVE will follow closely the progress of the experimental Special Forces units being organized in the New York City-Newark, N. J. metropolitan areas. It's the first time that these behind-the-enemy-lines outfits have been activated outside the Regular Army. IF THIS WORKS OUT, watch for more highly specialized Reserve outfits to be organized.

THE AF'S HOTTEST PLANE, the Lockheed F-104 Starfighter, is in the "deep freeze." That's the reason it was not shown at the Eglin AFB, Fla. firepower demonstration (Page 2), last week. Scheduled to show, the 1400 mile per hour plane was cancelled out because tests were still underway in the Air Proving Ground's climatic hangar, where aircraft are subjected to temperatures from -65 to 165 degrees above zero.

MORE WILL BE SAID in future weeks about the shortened "logistic tail" that will be used for "atomic age" Army forces. Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weible, USA, Deputy CofS for Personnel, representing CofS Maxwell D. Taylor, used the phrase in an address this week to the National Guard Assn. in Spokane, Wash. It's obvious that with increased availability of nuclear weapons, new logistics techniques, avoiding concentration of critical supplies, must be developed. GENERAL WEIBLE'S SPEECH was significant also for his assertion that "The Regular Army is too small to meet the expanded global requirements resulting from our acceptance of free world leadership," and that consequently the National Guard, previously considered "a second line of defense" now "is thus necessarily part of our first line."

THERE'S SPECULATION IN EUROPE that a further reorganization of Army Command Headquarters (see The Journal 6 Oct.) is in the offing. The shake-up probably will affect the Northern, Southern and Western Area Commands and HACOM, the Headquarters Area Command in the Heidelberg area. ONE POSSIBILITY is the placement of these support and administrative commands under the enlarged Communications Zone; another is their merger into a single overhead organization at USAREUR Headquarters in Heidelberg. THIS ACTION may be demanded by Defense Department chiefs, who are talking more and more about the desirability of "thinning out" support forces in Europe. ARMY LEADERS CONTEND that if it is feasible to eliminate some overhead personnel, there is an essential need for these troops to fill the gaps in combat units, and that total Army strength in Europe cannot be reduced significantly without impairing combat readiness.

THE AIR FORCE'S DRIVE to bolster the prestige of its NCO leaders gained a big step forward this week at Langley AFB, Va., in ceremonies recognizing the safe flying record of the 48th F-1 Sqdn. (Page 9). The award was presented jointly to the squadron commander, Lt. Col. Phillip N. Loring, USAF, and to M/Sgt. Leonard W. Loomis, USAF, squadron line chief. (Photo, Page 1). AT EVERY TURN in the day's program, special arrangements were made to salute the work done by Sergeant Loomis and the other NCO's of the squadron.

PROJECT VANGUARD—the earth satellite program supervised by the Navy—will have a versatile Deputy Director. He is J. Paul Walsh, a mechanical engineer, who directed work connected with the full scale and model shock test of the first nuclear power submarine reactor. THAT DONE, Mr. Walsh played a key role in Operation Wigwam in measuring pressure from a deep underwater atomic explosion—work which it is widely believed is related to the reported atomic depth charge.

A NEW LIST of Army general officer "makes" will be forthcoming soon. This is apparent in view of the fact that some officers are serving in lesser ranks than indicated for their jobs. Two examples: Brig. Gen. Normando Costello at the Ft. Jackson, S.C., Training Center and Brig. Gen. J. W. Bowen in command of the 82d Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C. Some colonels also have been shifted to Assistant Division Commander assignments prior to their promotion to brigadier general.

THE ARMY'S NEW LEGISLATIVE CHIEF, Brig. Gen. John H. Michaelis, USA, appears a cinch for an early second star. Though only 44, the onetime senior aide to General Eisenhower and celebrated Korea combat leader has been a B.G. since March 1951. His seniority standing and the fact that the Pentagon has called him to Washington from a key NATO assignment as SETAF commander in Italy indicate an Army decision to restore the Legislative Liaison assignment to its traditional two-star status. In the Air Force, Maj. Gen. Joe W. Kelly, USAF, serves as General Michaelis' opposite number.

IN ALL THE SERVICES, there could be a slight hold-up in promotions as a result of significant numbers of officers being kept on active duty until January. This action is being taken to assure their receiving new benefits under the Survivor Benefits Law. (See Page 11 for a detailed explanation of the new law).

NOBODY TAKES A BACK SEAT with USAA Insurance

- ★ USAA is the oldest, largest and strongest non-profit insurance organization serving the armed forces officer.
- ★ USAA is under the direction and management of active and retired officers of the Armed Services.
- ★ Because all funds are pooled for mutual protection, USAA can offer insurance at lowest possible cost, with large savings realized in generous annual dividends.
- ★ USAA operates in the United States, its possessions, territories; Canada, Cuba, Canal Zone, Japan; certain U. S. military bases in the Pacific, Philippines and in Western Continental Europe.
- ★ No matter whether you are stateside, or overseas, USAA is as close as your nearest mailbox, telephone or telegraph office. Your USAA insurance becomes effective as of postmarked time of application, unless a later date is specified.

Wherever you serve you'll find officers from all branches in complete agreement on United Services Automobile Association. They're ready to sound-off about USAA's low cost auto insurance, and the complete protection that is yours whether you're in Paris, Texas or Paris, France... Frankfurt, Germany or Frankfort, Kentucky. No insurance organization primarily serving the armed forces out-ranks USAA for size, safety, service and savings for policyholders. USAA is strictly a non-profit organization under the responsible management of active and retired service officers. Our strength through 34 years of operation has come from insuring officers and warrant officers of the armed forces, recognized preferred risks. In 1955 over seven million dollars of dividends were paid in the states to 262,161 members, amounting to an average saving of 44% of the standard manual premiums on automobiles. Take advantage of the greater savings, protection, and reliability offered by USAA. Fill in and mail coupon to be insured today—with USAA.

PIONEER'S UNIQUE SERVICE SAVES THE DAY AGAIN!

A huge transport stood useless in the Denver airport. One small aluminum extrusion would send it up again. Each hour's delay spelled high costs — great inconvenience. The mills were unable to ship in time. Then PIONEER was called. Within one hour the specified extrusion was on a plane and on its way to Denver!

This is one small example of PIONEER'S remarkable service. Nowhere else can you order aluminum extrusions and have them shipped the same day — anywhere in the world!

The largest stock of aircraft aluminum shapes and alloys in the entire industry (1,250,000 pounds!) is within your arm's reach — just call PIONEER. Aircraft alloys in 2024 (24S) and 7075 (75S), and all Army-Navy Drawing standards and standard open die extrusions, plus many other standard aircraft shapes, are warehoused for immediate shipment . . . over 2000 different shapes!

All stock is new mill material, and PIONEER stocks it in an oiled condition to prevent corrosion . . . carefully packages it for safe shipment.

Partial view of PIONEER'S 90,000 square foot warehouse.

Modern warehousing, the PIONEER way, is a big money saver: speeds production, saves storage space, cuts overhead. You have lower insurance, taxes, accounting, and handling costs. You can afford to experiment because PIONEER will deliver in any quantity, no matter how small — and because PIONEER ships the same day you order, you can relax in emergencies!

If building or maintaining aircraft is your business, you need PIONEER'S new catalogue. It gives complete sizes, dimensions, factors, etc. Its exclusive cross-reference section is an invaluable aid. Send for it today!

From sensitive components to brawny launchers...

AMF has missile experience you can use

• "Precisioning" power supplies for electronic control systems and developing complex launchers are two of AMF's many important contributions to our nation's missile programs • Today, AMF plays a part in more than half the missile programs now under way • And its activities cover practically every stage of design, development, and production... including mechanical, hydraulic, pneumatic and electronic test equipment... auxiliary power supplies... field and depot handling equipment... launchers... ground and flight control systems • See for yourself why AMF's experience in missiles, as well as in a host of other fields, has made it the "can do" company.

Research, Development,
Production in these fields:

- Armament
- Ballistics
- Radar Antennae
- Guided Missile Support Equipment
- Auxiliary Power Supplies
- Control Systems

HOW DOES THE SURVIVORS BENEFIT ACT AFFECT YOU?

HR 7089 affects the service benefits of nearly every service man — your present free insurance, family income benefits, Social Security and benefits after separation from service are all subjects on which you should be completely informed. We suggest you discuss this with your Personal Affairs Officer—Ask how you may contact your GPM representative to find out if changes should be made in the income options on your present life insurance to properly coordinate them with the new benefits. Our Personal Affairs department will be glad to help.

Can Strike Hard At Any Square Yard On Face Of Earth—Lt. Gen. Merrill Twining

MARINE CORPS SCHOOLS
QUANTICO, VA.

The Armed Forces are capable of striking hard "at any square yard on the face of the earth."

This statement was made by Lt. Gen. Merrill B. Twining, USMC, at a briefing here which preceded a demonstration of the Marine Corps-developed "vertical envelopment" technique of waging war in the Atomic Age.

The Marine Corps Schools Commandant, speaking before hundreds of high-ranking American and foreign military observers, industry leaders and members of the press, declared that the advent of the A-bomb has not eliminated the need for ground forces to seize and hold enemy territory.

Lt. Gen. Twining

The Marine Corps believes, the General said, "that the time comes in every battle when we must close with the enemy to defeat him." The Corps which he termed the world's only air-ground team, "is a force which can do just that," he declared. "It is the only such force which this country possesses."

The Marine Corps' three divisions and three air wings, General Twining told his audience, "constitute the country's force-in-readiness; the nation's only uncommitted strategic reserve; free and able to move, strike, and hold, wherever and whenever the need arises."

THE GENERAL wrote off the oft repeated statement that amphibious assaults are impossible in the face of nuclear munitions.

"We're prepared to admit," he said, "that an assault like that made at Iwo Jima is impossible, but then so is a purely ground operation like Stalingrad, or a fleet operation like that at Leyte Gulf. We're also prepared to admit the complete vulnerability of any airfield to the subsurface atomic burst."

"Nuclear munitions," he emphasized, "have not made any type of military operation impossible, but they have made large concentrations unprofitable."

The Corps, he said, relies on the helicopter to overcome the disadvantages inherent in massed frontal assaults on enemy coastlines.

The 'copter, the key to the Corps' "vertical envelopment" concept, the Quantico, Va.-demonstration showed, can be employed in either conventional or atomic warfare.

Here's a brief picture of how the Leathernecks envision the "airphibious" assault of the future:

High-speed task forces rush toward the selected area. Included in the TF are ships specifically designed to carry and launch loads of combat-ready Marines and their basic arms. (The world's first helicopter assault carrier, the USS Thetis Bay, a converted WWII jeep carrier, was commissioned on 20 July. The Navy has new types of helicopters, to be built from the keel up, on the drawing boards.) When the TF is more than 1,000 miles at sea, Navy and Marine planes begin to hit the objective. (If it's a nuclear war the enemy has demanded, a plane is sent in to deliver its deadly load).

As the TF moves toward the enemy positions, light attack planes join in the neutralization of fortifications. (If an

A-bomb has been detonated, the attack planes pound at the fringes of the burst to increase the initial shock effect and further demoralize the enemy).

Now the copter-carrying ships—from widely dispersed positions—are ready to set the assault in motion. The speed and deception of the copters eliminates the necessity for striking against a fixed line. Instead, the assault is launched against an area. Under the protecting wings of the fighter planes, the copters speed in at low level, discharge their fighting men, and return for more men or heavy pieces of ordnance, vehicles and supplies.

If the situation calls for it, the commander could order a direct beach assault while the enemy's attention is divided. If the opposing force gives too much attention to his rear and flanks, he becomes vulnerable at his front. If he stolidly holds his beach positions, he is subject to having his depth and strength whittled away from the rear and sides.

Use of the helicopter as an assault weapon places the enemy at a great initial disadvantage. "No matter where he is, he no longer enjoys a natural defense against an amphibious assault," General Twining pointed out.

The most obvious advantages which

"IT'S FUN TO PHONE"

"SO GLAD YOU CALLED"

"IT'S GOOD TO HEAR YOUR VOICE"

"THE DANCE WAS SWELL"

Just calling up can brighten your day

The telephone can be priceless in emergencies. It's the world's best helper when it comes to saving time, trips and trouble.

But one of its greatest uses has nothing to do with sudden need or calls to the grocer, dentist, hairdresser, electrician, department store, etc.

It's to bring friends and families together.

Just to be able to lift the receiver and talk to others is one of the joys of the telephone.

Isn't there some news you'd like to share with someone right now? And hasn't that some news you'd like to hear?

A telephone call that costs so little can do so much to brighten the day at both ends of the line.

LT. COL. W. E. SAWRIE, USAF, chief, Services Division, and his family were among the first to take a look at the many Christmas items featured in "Toyland" at Robins AFB, Ga. Daughter Susan clutches the doll of her choice, while Nancy seems awed by it all.

Judge Cockrill Addresses TC Club—

The Honorable Edith H. Cockrill, Judge of the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia, was an honor guest and the principal speaker at the season's first luncheon of the Transportation Corps Women's Club of the Washington area, on 2 Oct., at the Ft. McNair Officers' Club. Mrs. Frederic F. Withington, wife of Rear Admiral Withington, Chief of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance, and Mrs. Newell Hemenway, JANGO President and Executive Secretary, were also guests of honor. Judge Cockrill informally discussed her duties and the problems inherent to the Juvenile Court. Mrs. Withington briefly described the JANGO and its Thrift Shop program, which was of timely interest to the Club members, since they are conducting a drive this month for articles for the Shop.

Members and their guests were greeted by Mrs. Paul F. Yount, honorary president of the Club, and Mrs. Arthur C. Fillbrandt, president. Among the guests were Mrs. James W. Coughron, Mrs. John Daly and Mrs. George McConnell from the Women's Club of the Transportation Corps Training Center at Ft. Eustis, Va.

Mrs. Herbert P. Brann, chairman of the luncheon committee, was assisted by Mesdames Carl Elyes, Richard Snyder, Richard Kimball, Jack Cromwell, Gordon Jordan, Charles Nebel, Fay Green, John Kilpatrick, Kalpo F. Kauka, James Matesson, Lynn Burr and William Dougan. The hospitality committee included Mesdames Thomas Lyons, Albert B. Evans, James H. Spears, Thomas A. Cumble, Arnold A. Berglund, James F. Tumin and the members of the Executive Board.

FT. HOOD, TEX.—Mrs. William N. Gilmore, wife of the Ft. Hood and III Corps Commander, serves tea to Mrs. James Wiley at the opening meeting of the Officers' Wives Club. The meeting was in the form of a membership tea, with emphasis on the many activities sponsored by the club.

IG Wives Club To Start Season—

The first Fall luncheon of the Wives Club of the Inspector General's Office will be held at Patton Hall, Ft. Myer, Va., on Thursday, 18 Oct., at 1:30 p.m., when hostesses will be Mesdames Lex Stout, Robert Dixon and Isaac Hoppenstein.

AF Dental Officers' Wives' Club—

The Air Force Dental Officers' Wives Club gathered for luncheon on 10 Oct., at the Bolling AFB Officers' Club, when Mrs. A. G. Thomas, a representative of one of Washington's well known florists, was the guest speaker on the subject of "Flower Arrangements."

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. George S. Moore and Mrs. Thomas J. Crittendon.

QM Association Convention—

Focal point of interest for all officers of the Army's Quartermaster Corps this week was Washington, D. C., where the Quartermaster General's Conference was held on 8 and 9 Oct., followed by the annual Quartermaster Association Convention, on 11 and 12 October.

Many wives of Quartermaster command officers accompanied their husbands and among the number for whom entertainment was planned were Mesdames Webster Anderson, Arthur Marshall, Joseph Ranck, Ray Laux, Herbert Hall, Elmer Burns, Elmer Kell, Jr., Baird Rider, Alfred Koster, Charles Ritchie, Jesse Bell, John MacDonald, Jewell Cook, John Peterman and Maurice Matisoff. Mrs. Kester L. Hastings, wife of the Quartermaster General, welcomed the visiting wives with a luncheon at her home, on 8 October. Maj. Gen. and Mrs. A. B. Dennison entertained many of the visitors at dinner that evening, while the Commanding General of the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot, Major General and Mrs. Anderson, were hosts at a dinner party at the Ft. McNair Officers' Club the following evening; and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. V. J. MacLaughlin were "at home" on 10 Oct., to their visiting friends.

Mrs. Eual W. Culbertson was in charge of entertainment for the ladies, which included among other things, a comprehensive sightseeing tour. All Quartermaster ladies were guests at the banquet on the evening of 12 Oct., at the Mayflower Hotel, which climaxed the convention, when the Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, was the guest speaker.

At the conclusion of the Conference, the Quartermaster General sailed this week for a tour of U. S. Army Quartermaster commands in various places, accompanied by Mrs. Hastings. Their schedule will take them to the Low Countries, France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy, and Mrs. Hastings, as the national Deputy Director for Volunteer Services of the American Red Cross, will visit American military bases in Africa, and will attend an International Red Cross meeting in Geneva, Switzerland.

NWC Women's Club Hears Miss Fosdick—

Miss Dorothy Fosdick, distinguished author and the only woman ever appointed to the Policy Planning Staff of the Office of the Secretary of State, was the guest speaker at the 3 Oct. meeting of the Women's Club of the National War College. Her subject was "The Russian Challenge in Technology and Industry."

Busy Phone, Help From C-in-C's Wife Spark USAFE Club

WIESBADEN
GERMANY

WHAT does it take to be successful in leading the largest U. S. wives club in Europe?

The answer, says Mrs. W. H. Gauss, who is the foremost authority on the subject, is in large measure "the tremendous cooperation of all the members, particularly our honorary president." She concedes that some 300 outgoing phone calls per month also are important.

As President of the U. S. Air Forces in Europe Officers Wives Club, whose membership also includes Army and Navy Wives, as well as wives of Defense Department Civilians, Mrs. Gauss is the person who receives the cooperation and makes the phone calls.

The wife of the USAFE Comptroller and mother of five children, Mrs. Gauss of Huntington, W. Va., is active in the Wiesbaden German-American Club and is also an Assistant Girl Scout Leader. She reports that this year, because of her responsibilities as Wives Club President, she has had to forego work in helping to lead the church choir.

The USAFE Officers Wives Club, with a membership well over 500 at the start of the season, is shooting for a goal of 1000 members by the end of the club year.

Mrs. Gauss says that a big assist in the membership drive is a "Unification Tea" at which wives from all Services are invited.

In addition to this festive event, which sees about 450 guests invited, Friendship Coffees are held once a month at the home of Mrs. William H. Tunner, wife of the USAFE C-in-C and Honorary Club President.

Mrs. Tunner Is Hostess

Invitations are sent out personally by Mrs. Tunner to newcomers to the Wiesbaden area. At the Friendship Coffees, Mrs. Gauss and Mrs. Tunner are joined by Mrs. J. H. Price, Honorary Vice President, in greeting the guests. Mrs. Price is the wife of the Commander of the 7100th Support Group at Wiesbaden AB. Mrs. W. W. Veal is Friendship Coffee Chairman.

What makes the USAFE Officers Wives Club click, Mrs. Gauss says repeatedly in an interview, "is the fact that there are so many talented people here who are willing to do so many things."

She cites the work done by chairmen of 27 different committees.

"Our first concern is to be a club of service," says Mrs. Gauss. "After that, we look to our social program."

The Club's record of Service includes projects that help to create goodwill among Germans and Americans. The USAFE Wives currently are busy gathering hundreds of toys for distribution this Christmas to German orphanages. Some of the toys and dolls also will be taken to the pediatrics ward at the Wiesbaden Air Force Hospital.

WIESBADEN, GERMANY—Elections were held recently at the Neroburg Officers Club for the German-American Women's Club. New officers are (L-R), Mrs. A. N. Beattie, American Treasurer; Mrs. James Weir, American President; Frau Froukje Roessle, German President; Frau Sigrid Wolt, German Vice President; Mrs. Grien Rogers, American Vice President and Mrs. Lora Koomanoff, American Secretary.

At that hospital, to which members of Service families frequently are brought from hundreds of miles away for treatment, the Wives Club maintains a Calling Committee under Mrs. P. A. Cox. Its job is to make sure that wives who are patients there and who are away from their families receive all possible assistance.

The Club works closely with the Red Cross to make certain there is no duplication of effort, Mrs. Gauss explains. "Our job is to supplement the activities of the Gray Ladies. Of course, scores of our members are Gray Ladies." Mrs. D. N. Kellogg is Chairman of the Club's Red Cross Committee.

Hundreds of dollars are distributed each year to German charities and to U. S. youth activities as a result of work done by the Ways and Means Committee, led by Mrs. R. M. Shoemaker, and the Thrift Shop under Mrs. W. B. Lowrey.

A frequent recipient of Wives Club assistance is the energetic Youth Association program, under direction of Mrs. J. A. Bulger. This includes support for such groups as the Scouts and the Little League.

Army Wife Is Chairman

The Club's Welfare Chairman is now Mrs. J. E. Daniels, an Army wife. She recently replaced Mrs. Lewis Croft, who had to relinquish the post when she became a school teacher here.

The Club's interest in furthering education is attested in its sponsorship of a $500 scholarship to a Service daughter to assist in her college education. The award is made to a student at the H. H. Arnold High School here.

Mrs. Gauss may well consider herself something of an expert on education of children. Her oldest son, Bradford, is attending Dental School at Omaha, Nebr. A daughter, Jo Ann, has just been capped at Schenectady, N. Y., after completing Nurses' training and is expected to join Colonel and Mrs. Gauss in December.

Another son, Curtis, is a student at Boise Junior College in Idaho, and Sandra Gauss is a student at Boise High School. The youngster of the family, Sharon, goes to the H. H. Arnold High School.

The pressure of a busy program has made it necessary for Mrs. Gauss to give up active leadership in the German-American Club of Wiesbaden, where she was Assistant Publicity Chairman last year.

But she and Colonel Gauss continue to participate in the programs of the German-American Club, which has two officers for every job, one a German wife and the other an American wife.

Once a month, the German-American Club has a social evening to which the husbands are invited.

The Officers Wives Club and the NCO Wives Club here, which is led by Mrs. R. C. Ricks, Jr., maintain close liaison in all welfare projects.

Kinderlift Gets A Boost

The Officer and NCO Wives, for example, join each year in Operation Kinderlift. This is the Air Force-sponsored activity which sees hundreds of youngsters from Berlin flown to areas in Western Germany for summer-time vacations.

Working with the Chaplains and the German Red Cross, the Clubs help in screening the youngsters in order to place them where they will get maximum enjoyment out of the holiday and in transporting the youngsters once they arrive at the air base.

Typical of the expertise of the Club is the fact Mrs. L. W. Stockton was Co-Chairman of the Kinderlift Project this year. She was born in Wiesbaden.

Mrs. Gauss' board includes Mrs. J. P. Pool, Vice President; Mrs. L. F. Rentmeester, Secretary; and Mrs. R. K. Thompson, Treasurer.

The honor guests included the wife of the Secretary of State, Mrs. John Foster Dulles, the wife of the Chief of Protocol of the Department of State, Mrs. John F. Simmons, and Mrs. M. William Blake of the Foreign Service.

JANGO to Have Luncheon—

A Senior Membership luncheon for the JANGO will be held at the Ft. McNair Officers' Club, on Tuesday, 16 Oct., when it is hoped members will bring many prospective members. Sherry hour will begin at 12:15 p.m., the receiving line will form at 12:30 and luncheon will be served promptly at 1:00 p.m.

Members of the program committee will receive, and a musical program will be presented by a string quartet from the Navy's School of Music.

For reservations, call the JANGO office, NA 8-5809, before noon of Monday, 15 Oct., which will also be the deadline for cancellations.

ing in marriage Miss Martha Selden Metzler and Dr. William Corson Mohler. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jeffrey Caswell Metzler of 2609 P St., N. W., Washington, and the late Rear Admiral Metzler, USN-Ret., and Dr. Mohler is the son of Mrs. David De Long, sr., of Cleveland Ohio.

The single ring ceremony was performed by Chaplain Oliver Jones.

Given in marriage by her brother, Lt. Jeffrey C. Metzler, jr., USN, the bride wore a gown of white satin designed on Empire lines, its high waist line and wide boat neck highlighted with narrow bands of pearl-embroidered lace. Her fingertip tulle veil was held by a satin cap trimmed with matching pearl-embroidered lace, and she carried a shower bouquet of stephanotis and white orchids.

Her matron of honor was Mrs. Wendell Herbruck of Canton, Ohio, and her bridesmaids included Mrs. George Cabell Williams, Mrs. Smith Hempstone, Jr., Miss Jean Weed and Miss Frances Harris.

A reception and wedding breakfast at the Ft. McNair Officers' Club, followed the ceremony, with the bridegroom's mother and step-father receiving with Mrs. Metzler and the bridal party.

Mrs. Mohler is a graduate of Mt. Vernon Seminary, Wooster College in Ohio, and the Yale School of Nursing. Prior to her marriage, she was Head Nurse of a ward in the Children's Building of the D. C. General Hospital. Dr. Mohler, a graduate of Exeter Academy, Yale University, Magna cum laude, and of Columbia University's School of Medicine, is currently serving in the Public Health Service in cancer research.

Following a month's trip in New England, the young couple will make their home at 3 Pook's Hill Rd., Bethesda, Md.

Complete Text Of Pentagon Explanation On New Service Social Security Law

December 1956. In extending social security to personnel in the military service, those individuals who may have started paying on their social security retirement while in civilian employment will continue to receive social security coverage while in service, since such credits earned in civilian employment may be combined with those earned in military service.

b. Injured status. In order to be eligible for retirement and/or survivors benefits, under the Social Security program, an individual must be either fully or currently insured.

(1) Fully insured. Generally, an individual is fully insured when he has 40 quarters of coverage or when he has one quarter of coverage for each two calendar quarters from 1 January 1951 up to the quarter in which he reaches retirement age or dies. In no case can the individual qualify for benefits for himself or his survivors if he has less than 6 quarters of coverage.

(2) Currently insured. An individual is currently insured when he has at least six quarters of coverage during the 13-quarter period ending with the quarter he died, or the quarter in which he became eligible to old-age benefits. Benefits payable under this status are shown in figure 2.

c. Age requirements for commencement of benefits.

(1) Eligible member. An eligible member must have attained age 65 (age 62 for women) unless physically disabled. Persons who are unable to engage in any substantial and gainful employment because of physical disability, when the impairment has existed for 6 months, may draw disability benefits at age 50, if he is both fully and currently insured and has a quarter of coverage for 20 out of the 40 quarters before his disability. However, a person who is receiving a benefit from another agency of the Federal government (i. e., retirement pay or VA compensation) because of such disability will have his social security disability benefits reduced by the amount of the other Federal benefit. Example: An individual aged 50 entitled to receive social security disability payments of $108.50 monthly and who is receiving Army retirement pay in amount of $100 per month, will receive $8.50 monthly social security payments. This does not preclude a disabled individual from requesting a "wage freeze," as indicated in paragraph 5, until he reaches age 65, at which time he may draw retirement benefits from social security in addition to his military service retired pay.

(2) Working women.

(a) A female who has worked in covered employment and earned the required number of quarters of coverage, may, if she desires, become entitled to social security payments as soon as she reaches 62 years of age instead of having to wait until age 65. If she elects to take the payments before she reaches age 65, the amount of the monthly payment will be reduced. The amount of the reduction depends on the number of months before she reaches age 65 that she starts getting benefits (fig. 4). If the woman worker chooses to take benefits in a reduced amount before age 65, she will continue to get a reduced amount even after she is 65.

(b) Should a working woman elect to receive benefits at a reduced amount, the payment to dependents (children, dependent husband, or in case of her death, her dependent children, widower, or dependent parents) will not be reduced. Their benefits would be based on the unreduced amount of the woman worker's benefits. The woman worker has a decision to make; to have benefits start at an earlier age in a reduced amount, or to wait a while and receive a higher rate. In comparison, we find that if the woman worker chooses the reduced amount at any age between 62 and 65, she will be ahead for the first 15 years. However, if she receives the benefits at a reduced rate for more than 15 years the total amount she receives will not be as large as if she had waited until age 65 for the higher rate.

(3) Wife of eligible member. If a member is receiving social security retirement benefits, his wife is also eligible for benefits when she reaches age 65 (col. 3, fig. 3), or she may elect to receive benefits in a reduced amount if she is between 62 and 65 years of age (25% reduction at age 62, graduated scale for each month under 65). Every month she puts off receiving retirement benefits up to age 65 will increase her benefits slightly (fig. 4). Such an election once made cannot be revoked and benefits will not be increased to the full amount at age 65. If the wife of a retired member chooses the reduced benefits at any age between 62 and 65, she will be ahead for the first 12 years. However, if she receives the reduced rate for more than 12 years, the total amount she receives will not be as large as if she had waited until age 65. If the husband dies while she is receiving such reduced payments, she would become entitled to the full widow's benefits.

(4) Children of eligible member. Each minor child of a member who is receiving social security benefits is eligible for a child's benefit based on the earnings of the parent. Benefit payable to the child is one half of the amount of the member's benefit. However, the total monthly payment to a family (member, wife and children), cannot exceed 80 per cent of the member's average monthly earnings or more than $200 whichever is smaller. Payment of benefits may be made to a disabled child after 18 if the child became totally disabled before age 18. If either the father or mother is receiving old-age insurance payments or were insured for survivors benefits at the time of his or her death.

(5) Widow of eligible member. A widow of an eligible person may receive her full benefits at age 62. A widow who has not reached age 62 and who has a minor child (or children) in her care, will begin receiving survivor benefits for herself and children at the time of her husband's death (fig. 3, cols. 4, 5, and 6). The survivor benefits will terminate when the children have attained age 18 (unless they are physically or mentally disabled). If a disabled child over 18 continues to receive benefits, the mother with the child in her care will continue to get benefits. In any case, if the widow is age 62 at the time the children reach age 18, she will receive benefits in the amount given widows without children (fig. 3, col. 4).

(6) Surviving children of eligible member. Surviving children of an eligible member are entitled to benefits only until they attain age 18 or marry. However, payment of benefits is made to a disabled child after age 18, if the child became totally disabled before age 18. Each child receives a monthly benefit of one-half the worker's amount with one-quarter of the worker's amount divided among all eligible children.

(7) Dependent parent (s). Parents who are in fact dependent upon the eligible member, at the time of the member's death, may receive benefits equal to three-quarters of the member's amount if the deceased eligible member leaves no dependent spouse or child who could become entitled to benefits. The dependent father may get benefits at age 65; a dependent mother will receive full benefits commencing at age 62. However, proof of dependency must be filed within 2 years of death of member.

5. WAGE FREEZE. When an individual becomes totally disabled he may apply to the Social Security Administration to have his years during the disability period excluded in figuring the average earnings, or in figuring the number of quarters needed by the individual to be eligible for retirement payments. In order to have his record of earnings "frozen" an individual must have social security credit for 5 years of work (20 quarters of coverage) out of 10 years before becoming disabled, and 1½ years of work (6 quarters of coverage) during the 13-quarter period occurring immediately before becoming disabled. By so doing, if the individual receives no earnings for social security credit during the "freeze" period, he insures that his average monthly earnings remain at the former level and do not (when computed for benefit payments) include the "no wage" periods during his total disability period.

6. AMOUNT OF SOCIAL SECURITY PAYMENTS. The amount of social security benefit payments to the eligible member and/or to his dependents and survivors are determined from the member's average monthly earnings over a period of time. The exact amount of benefit payments can be determined only after an application has been made to the Social Security Administration, but approximate amounts may be determined by using figure 3 (simplified table at $10 intervals) and the methods outlined below.

7. COMPUTATION OF EARNINGS. Under current law, the period of time over which average earnings are figured may start with 1 January 1937 (beginning of the Social Security program) or with 1 January 1951, and end the year preceding the year in which benefits are claimed. Most people will receive higher benefits by using average monthly earnings from 1 January 1951 or age 22 if later; however, in order to qualify for this computation, the eligible member must have six quarters of coverage after 31 December 1950. Although an individual's earnings prior to 1 January 1951 are disregarded in this connection, the quarters of coverage earned prior to that date are not lost—once a quarter of coverage is earned, it can never be taken away. It is not necessary to select which method will be used to compute benefits as the Social Security Administration will determine the amount of benefits under both methods and pay the highest benefits. The following example illustrates the method of computation, using 1951 as the starting period.

a. Add all earnings subject to social security taxes from 1 January 1951 to end of year preceding either 65th birthdate (62nd birthdate for women), year in which application for benefits is submitted if after retirement age, or year of death of eligible member, if earlier than retirement age. Include that portion of the period for which the individual may be entitled to free wage credits of $160 per month (between 1 January 1951 and 31 December 1956).

Note. Earnings up to $3600 a year can be computed toward social security for the years 1951 through 1954 and up to $4200 for 1955 and later years. Military wage credits for service prior to 1 January 1957 were granted in the amount of $160 per month, regardless of basic pay, and would not exceed the limitations unless outside income covered by the Social Security program was earned.

b. The individual may, if it would increase the average monthly wage, drop-out up to five of any calendar years after 1950 in which income was low, or there was no income at all.

c. Subtract the wages earned during the "drop-out" period from the total wages to obtain the net total earnings. Subtract the number of months included in the "drop-out" period. Divide the net total earnings by the number of remaining months from 1 January 1951 to the end of the computation period (a above). Always use a minimum of 18 months. The quotient is the average monthly wage.

d. After having determined the average monthly wage, an approximate amount of monthly social security benefits (retirement, survivors, and disability) may be determined by utilizing figure 3.

8. EFFECT OF PROGRAM. The following examples illustrate the effect of this program on typical groups of personnel:

a. Individual with continuous military service since 1 January 1953, whose date of birth is 1 January 1933, age 23 years, basic pay—$120 a month. Effective with the month of January 1957 individual will pay $2.70 social security tax each month. He will be granted free military wage credits at $160 a month for each month's service between 1 January 1953 and 31 December 1956, in this case 16 quarters 1953-1956.

(1) No dependents. Although this individual has many working years ahead he has started providing for his retirement, and for the survivor benefits should he acquire a family at a future date. Quarters of coverage and wage credits earned during military service are carried over into civilian employment covered by social security.

(2) Wife-one child. If this individual should die on or after 1 January 1957 and before 1 January 1962 while in the service, his survivors would draw $105.80 a month, until the child reaches age 18, at which time benefits would cease. When the widow reaches age 62, she would commence receiving her monthly old-age benefits of $52.90 (fig. 2).

b. Individual completed 20 years service 31 August 1956, with continuous military service since 16 September 1940. Date of birth: 1 January 1916, age 40.

(1) Should this individual retire for years of service on or before 31 December 1956 he would not be eligible for any social security benefits based on his military service since retirement does not come under provisions outlined in paragraph 3, and he has not contributed to paid social security.

(2) Should this individual remain on active duty until 31 January 1957, he would receive free social security credits for the period 1 January 1951-31 December 1956 (24 quarters of free coverage at $160 per month) and paid credits for month of January 1957 (1 quarter of coverage). Although this individual does not have the necessary quarters of coverage to become eligible for social security retirement benefits, he now requires only 15 additional quarters of coverage (approximately 4½ years of covered employment). If this individual should die before he has earned the additional 15 quarters, and he has earned one quarter of coverage for every two calendar quarters up to the date of his death, he would be deemed as fully insured for the purpose of paying survivor benefits to eligible dependents.

(3) Should this individual retire for physical disability and elect to have Army retirement pay computed on that basis rather than on his years of service he will have earned one quarter of coverage for each calendar quarter or fraction thereof since 16 September 1940 to his date of retirement (par. 3a). He will then have 40 quarters of coverage and be fully insured. The procedure for computation of his average monthly wage will be substantially as shown in paragraph 7. However, if he does not work in covered employment after retirement, his average monthly wage will be a smaller amount, since a greater number of years of unemployment (from date of retirement to attainment of age 65) must be averaged in with his years of employment since 1 January 1951. If he is eligible for a wage freeze because of disability he could exclude his years during the period of his disability in the computation of the average monthly wage, in addition to five drop-out years, thus preserving the amount of his average monthly wage.

c. Individual with continuous service since 1 January 1951 whose date of birth is 2 January 1900, age 56 years.

(1) Provided this individual remains on active duty until 30 October 1957 (57 years of age), he would receive free social security credits for the period 1 January 1951-31 December 1956 (24 quarters of coverage, $160 per month) and paid credits for months January-October 1957 (4 quarters of coverage) for a total of 28 quarters of coverage. Figure 1 indicates that an individual in this age bracket (57 years of age) with 28 quarters of coverage is fully insured. Once the necessary quarters of coverage have been acquired, his approximate social security benefits can be computed. Assuming an average $300 per month was earned for the months January to October 1957, his total income for Social Security purposes will be $14,520 ($160 per month in 1951 through 1956 and $300 per month in 1957). For retirement benefits, the average monthly wage must be determined up to the year in which the eligible member will attain age 65, in this case, 2 January 1965. If he does not work after retirement or release from active duty in October 1957, he will have 7 years of unemployment (1953-1964) which must be averaged in with his 7 years of employment, or a total of 14 years to be used in finding the average monthly wage. However, he may drop out up to 5 years which were years of low or no earnings. After dropping out the maximum 5 years, a total of 9 years (108 months) must be divided into the total amount of income for social security purposes ($14,520). Thus the average monthly wage is $134.00 ($14,520 ÷ 108). Figure 3 indicates that such an average monthly wage would entitle the individual at age 65 to approximately $65.30 per month for life. The wife would also be entitled to full retirement benefits when she reaches age 65 (par. 40 (2) on benefits at an earlier age) (fig. 3).

(2) In the event this individual retires for years of service prior to 1 January 1957, he would not be entitled to social security benefits based on his military service as he would not come under one of the categories listed in paragraph 3a.

9. APPLICATION. It is important to remember that social security benefits are not made automatically. An application for bene-

RADM. JOHN P. WOMBLE, USN

RADM. JOHN P. WOMBLE, JR., USN, chairman of the Defense Department Committee which drafted recommendations leading to enactment of the Career

Incentive Act of 1955, died on 5 Oct., at the Portsmouth Naval Hospital, Norfolk, Va.

The 55-year-old flag officer had been ill for three weeks. His last duty assignment was as Commander, Service Force, Atlantic Fleet.

A 1920 graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, Admiral Womble commanded a destroyer squadron in the Pacific during WW II. His later assignments included duty as Commander, Atlantic Fleet Mine Force and Deputy Director of Intelligence for the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Immediately prior to his tour of duty at Norfolk he served as Deputy Director of Personnel Policy in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Personnel.

In 1953, when a group of senior service officers was appointed to make up a Pentagon "Ad Hoc Committee on the Future of Military Service as a Career That Will Attract and Retain Capable Career Personnel," Admiral Womble was designated as chairman. The group, which came to be known as the "Womble Committee," urged that military careers be made more attractive by increasing pay and giving greater emphasis to rank, discipline and officer authority.

Admiral Womble is survived by his widow, Lillian C. Womble; a son, John P. Womble, III, and a daughter, Mrs. A. C. Spaulding of Pasadena, Calif., and two grandchildren. Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery on 9 Oct., and memorial services were conducted simultaneously at the Naval Air Station Chapel, Norfolk.

Vice Admirals William L. Rees and Lorenzo S. Sabin, Jr., Rear Admirals Harold D. Baker, Frank T. Watkins, Roland N. Smoot, John C. Daniel, T. M. Moncy, USN-Ret., and N. F. Fitzgerald, USN-Ret., acted as pallbearers. The escort officer was Adm. Kenneth M. McManes.

Army Navy Air Force Journal 29 13 Oct. 1956 (Vol. 94, P. 213)

Mrs. Jean Hagood Holloway, wife of the Chief of Naval Personnel, VADM. James L. Holloway, Jr., who died at her home in Washington, on 3 Oct., following a prolonged illness. Burial was at Arlington National Cemetery. She was 55 years old.

Born at Ft. Moultrie, S. C., the daughter of Maj. Gen. (USA) and Mrs. Johnson Hagood, Mrs. Holloway was graduated from Ashley Hall in 1918, and made her debut at the St. Cecilia Ball in Charleston, S. C., the following year. She was married to the then Lieutenant (jg) Holloway, at St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Charleston, in May 1921.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by one son, Cdr. J. L. Holloway, 3d, USN, presently Commanding Officer of Attack Squadron 83, Atlantic Fleet, who resides at 206 Brandon Rd., Bay Colony, Virginia Beach, Va.; one daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Heyworth, wife of Commander Heyworth, USN, of the Naval Test Center, Patuxent River, Md.; six grandchildren, James L., 4th, Lucy Dabney and Jean Meredith Holloway, and Lawrence, Jr., Gordon and Marguerite Heyworth; her mother, Mrs. Johnson Hagood of 1 Greenhill St., Charleston; and one brother, Col. Johnson Hagood, Jr., USA-Ret., now living in Bogota, Colombia.

Brig. Gen. & Mrs. C. H. Conrad, Jr.

Burial services for Brig. Gen. C. H. Conrad, Jr., USA-Ret., and his wife, Mrs. Eva Shacklett Conrad, were held at Arlington National Cemetery, on 8 Oct.

Officiating at the graveside ceremony was Maj. Gen. Luther Miller, USA-Ret., former Army Chief of Chaplains, and present Canon of the Washington Cathedral.

General Conrad, a former Cavalry officer and a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy class of 1895, died in August 1954. Mrs. Conrad, a native of Virginia, died 28 Sept., at the Baptist Memorial Hospital, San Antonio, Tex.

Lockheed Given New AF Contract For C-130s

The Air Force has awarded a new contract to Lockheed Aircraft's Georgia Division for the manufacture of C-130 Hercules propjet transports.

The contract, the fifth production one awarded the Marietta plant, covers a large quantity of the multi-purpose transports, and is estimated to be worth well over $100-million. A fixed price type contract will be negotiated by Lockheed with the Air Force.

In addition to the planes, the contract includes spare parts, ground handling equipment, engineering and technical data and mobile training units. The mobile units are used by the Air Force to train both flight and ground crews at C-130 bases.

The Hercules can airlift 20 tons or carry 92 troops, is powered by four Allison T-56 turbine engines with a total of 15,000 hp, can airdrop heavy equipment or paratroopers, and holds the record for airdropping 27,000 pounds, the heaviest single load ever parachute-extracted from an airplane, and for multiple airdrops. Its top speed is 370 mph.

Final AD-6 Off Line El Segundo Builds AD-7

The last AD-6 attack bomber was delivered to the Navy recently, and the Douglas Aircraft's El Segundo Division now is devoting production to the AD-7, latest in the Skyraider series.

The final AD-6 model was accepted by the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics Representative pilot Lt. John A. Romano for the Navy, and was delivered to the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md., by NATC Pilot Comdr. L. E. Burke, USN.

Since 1945, more than 3000 AD Skyraiders have been built. A single-place version of the "Able Dog" series, the AD-6 was one of 50 model designations and approximately two dozen different configurations produced by the Douglas division during the past 11 years.

The AD-7 is similar to its immediate predecessor in outward appearance. However, several improvements have been made. Among these are an improved Wright B-3350 reciprocating engine that provides added power, and "beefed up" wings which will prolong service life under higher tactical loads. First AD-7 deliveries already have been made to the Navy.

Pentagon Asks "Forgiveness," New Rules For Household Goods Shipment & Storage

New rules for the shipment and storage of household goods and, in one instance, the movement of dependents, are being put together at the Pentagon for consideration by the next Congress.

One of the proposed laws gives the Services uniform authority to transport dependents and household goods to the permanent station of Servicemen assigned to overseas commands who marry on leave or while on temporary duty in the United States, Alaska or the Territories.

Under present law, movement of dependents at Government cost is authorized in such cases only to the next permanent change of station after the date of marriage.

The Air Force has been assigned responsibility for the proposal.

A second legislative request is in the form of a "forgiveness" bill. It provides statutory authority for all temporary storage of household effects of Servicemen prior to 17 April 1954.

Before that date, the Services were authorizing temporary storage at public expense for periods not exceeding six months, upon request of an owner ordered to make any permanent change of station. However, the Comptroller General ruled on 16 April 1954 that the Defense Department did not have proper authority to make such authorization.

The new proposal, drafted by the Navy, will sanction the payment of such charges and make it unnecessary for the Services to attempt to get the money back.

The third proposal, also a "forgiveness" plan, validates transportation charges and OKs repayment to certain Army and AF members who had to pay for the transportation of their household goods and the shipment of their private automobiles from the San Francisco port of embarkation to Hawaii.

Transportation in these cases was authorized on a "space available basis" in connection with a permanent change of station of such members from the United States to a restricted area where dependents were not permitted to accompany the members.

This draft is in the hands of the Army. All three proposals are expected to be sent to the Congress early next year.

ANNUAL TROPHY AWARDS to honor proficiency achievement of radar controllers of the Air Force have been established by Radio Corporation of America. Named in honor of Brig. Gen. Clinton D. Vincent, USAF, RCA trophies will be awarded to controllers scoring highest achievement in USAF's annual Worldwide Weapons and Gunnery Meets. Above, Theodore A. Smith, Executive Vice President, RCA Defense Electronic Products, is shown with trophy which will be presented 18 Oct to USAF Division represented by controllers of winning intercept team competing in air-to-air rocketry events at Vincent Air Force Base, Ariz. Similar trophy will be awarded at Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron to which controller members of winning team are assigned.

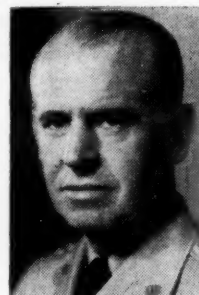

General Parks Will Boss Global PX's, He Replaces Retiring General Peckham

Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, a military personnel expert, will become head of the Army-Air Force Exchange Service in December.

Now Assistant CoFS for Personnel in the Far East Command, General Parks will succeed Maj. Gen. Howard L. Peckham, USA, who retires on 30 Nov.

General Peckham has won wide acclaim throughout the

Maj. Gen. Parks

Services for his leadership of the multi-million dollar Post Exchange organization. Under his direction, there has been a world-wide integration of PX operations, vast improvements in services and facilities, and standardized prices.

General Parks, who will be 50 on 27 Oct., was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1939 and commissioned a second lieutenant in the Coast Artillery Corps.

accrue to the Corps by using the copter, the General said, are:

- We can strike almost anywhere for we now have complete freedom of choice of landing areas;
- We no longer depend upon the availability of beaches. The threat of attack along any portion of his coastline forces the enemy to be widely deployed and highly mobile;
- We create a tremendous shock effect through surprise, speed and depth of initial penetration;
- We land the entire assault force, tactical and logistical in the area containing the objective—we do not fight over the ground leading to the objective;
- We reduce enemy defense from any direction required. The speed we command gives us the ability to surprise;
- We have greater dispersion in ship-to-shore movement;
- We need no longer keep assault launching ships in vulnerable fixed position, since we unload while underway;
- We no longer depend on the slow, vulnerable water-borne, ship-to-shore operations during the assault phase;
- We rapidly disperse our forces;
- We eliminate the need for beach exits, roads and bridges, all those details which formerly restricted our choice of objectives;
- We reduce our dependence on long lines of ground communications and speed-up re-supply operations; and,
- We can seize and defend areas considerably larger than in the past.

Industry Notes

Dr. Alan Andrew, an atomic energy research specialist, has joined the staff of the Nuclear Physics and Engineering department of the Lockheed Missile Systems division research laboratories.

Kirke W. Marsh has been appointed Bendix Aviation Corporation general project manager on a major guided missile project. Mr. Marsh, who formerly was with the Corporation's Research Laboratories in Detroit, was a major in the Army Signal Corps during WW II.

P. E. LaLiberte has been appointed sales manager for weapon control equipment for General Electric's Light Military Electronic Department. He served three years in the Navy during WW II, with assignments as an aviation radio-man with a scouting squadron aboard the USS Ranger and later as a radio school instructor.

The Aircraft Industries Association's Guided Missile Committee has elected Dr. William F. Ballhaus, chief engineer for Northrop Aircraft, Inc., chairman for the coming year. He succeeds Edwin A. Speakman, vice president and general manager of Fairchild Guided Missiles Division. The Committee is made up of representatives of leading missile manufacturers, and meets several times a year to discuss common problems.

General Electric has developed for the Air Force a new radio technique described as a solution to the increasing demands of long-range military radio operations. The new technique, synchronous communications, provides improved reception over conventional AM radio by offering increased resistance to interference and jamming over the SSB. It is basically a refinement of AM radio, making more efficient use of both the transmitter and receiver.

Northrop Aircraft has expanded its guided missile program to the extent where it has now leased an additional 72,000 square foot administrative facility in Torrance, Calif. Approximately 700 office and technical personnel are expected to occupy the Northrop-Torrance installation on a gradual basis beginning 1 Nov.

Bulletin Tells Retired WWI Officers About Social Security Wage Credits

How does a retired officer with WWI service know if he is eligible for free Social Security wage credits?

This question is answered by the Army Adjutant General in the current AG bulletin for retired Army personnel. Here is what the bulletin has to say:

"Generally, an officer with World War I service who was mandatorily retired for length of service is ineligible for the wage credits. The officer's retired pay is computed on years of service. Therefore, unless he completes 29½ years service before 25 July 1947 and subsequently served on active duty, all his service in both social security periods is used in computing the amount of his retired pay. This means that he cannot receive the wage credits for either social security period.

"On the other hand, an officer with WWI service who was retired for age or disability or who voluntarily retired by reason of service prior to 12 Nov 1918 under the provisions of the Act of 31 July 1935 as amended by the Act of 13 June 1940 may be eligible for the military wage credits.

"The Act of 31 July 1935, as amended, enabled a regular Army officer with WWI service to retire voluntarily and have his retired pay calculated at the rate of 75 per cent of his base pay upon retirement. The officer's years of service are not used to establish eligibility for, or compute the amount of, his retired pay. Therefore, the officer who voluntarily retired under the Act of 31 July 1935, as amended, is eligible for social security military wage credits, unless his retired pay was recomputed on the basis of years of service under the Career Compensation Act of 1 Oct 1949.

Career Compensation Act

"Passage of the Career Compensation Act, which raised the pay of active duty and retired military personnel, indirectly caused a number of retired officers to lose their eligibility for social security credits. This Act provided that if the pay of a retired officer would be greater by having his retired pay recomputed on the basis of years of service at the higher rates authorized by the Act, rather than 75 per cent of his base pay at time of retirement as authorized by the Act of 31 July 1935, as amended, then the officer's pay would be recomputed on the years of service basis. This action made the officer ineligible for social security credits unless he completed 29½ years service before 16 Sept 1940 or 25 July 1947 and subsequently served on active duty.

However, the monthly increase in retired pay normally exceeded the amount of money the officer would have received in monthly social security benefit payments when he reached age 65.

"Under another provision of the Career Compensation Act, an officer who had previously been retired for disability was given three options for the computation of his retired pay:

"He could elect to continue to receive his present retired pay.

"He could elect to receive retired pay based on percentage of disability.

"He could elect to receive retired pay computed on his years of service.

Example Given

"An officer who elected to continue to receive his present retired pay or to receive retired pay computed on percentage of disability remained eligible for the social security military wage credits. An officer who elected to receive retired pay computed on his years of service became ineligible to receive the wage credits, unless he completed 29½ years of service before 16 Sept 1940 or 25 July 1947 and subsequently served on active duty. Again it is pointed out that by electing to receive the higher Army retired pay, the officer received a monthly increase which normally exceeded the amount he would have received at age 65 from social security benefits had he retained his rights to the wage credits.

"The Career Compensation Act also extended to reserve officers with WWI service who are retired for disability the right to have their retired pay calculated at the rate of 75 per cent of their base pay upon retirement. This entitlement was not retroactive and applied only to reserve officers retired after 30 Sept 1949. Such reserve officers are eligible to receive social security credits, since their military service in the social security periods is not used to establish eligibility for, or compute the amount of, their retired pay.

"Prior to 1953, officers with WWI service and over 30 years active duty service were retired under the provisions of Revised Statute 1243. Since 30 years of active duty service are required to establish eligibility for retirement under Revised Statute 1243, an officer retired under the provisions of this statute is ineligible to receive social security military wage credits unless he completed 30 years service before 16 Sept 1940 or 25 July 1947 and subsequently served on active duty."

Social Security

fits must be filed before monthly retirement payments, monthly survivors payments, or the lump sum payments can be paid. The application should be made promptly since the number of back payments possible is limited by the law. Application for benefits filed by survivors with either the Veterans Administration or the Social Security Administration will constitute an application for benefits from both agencies. In addition, proofs filed with either agency, will be made available to the other agency.

10. PUBLICITY. Since the Social Security program has far reaching implications for personnel in the military service, maximum publicity will be given at unit level to the program.

Dental Care Cut Causes Pentagon Concern

factor in the retention of key officers and men.

Up to now, little attention has been focused on the problems which the Army faces as a result of the dental-care cut-back. During Congressional hearings on the Medicare bill, this feature of the program was obscured by the emphasis placed on the new plan to provide hospitalization for dependents in civilian facilities.

In order to put all the Services on the same footing, the dental-care program was re-drafted to eliminate care which only the Army had traditionally provided.

The thought is now expressed that it might have been safer and wiser to extend the Army program to the other three Services. The decision was unusual in view of the fact that the Congress rarely takes away benefits already in force.

In addition to providing for emergency dental treatment for dependents within the continental U.S., the new Medicare Act also authorizes care which is a necessary adjunct to medical or surgical treatment. And, dependents may be furnished complete dental care outside the continental U.S., or in remote areas within the U.S. where adequate civilian dental facilities are not available.

Officials are now concerned that this may mean more work for dental officers overseas. They are afraid dependents will neglect their teeth while in the States and flock to dental chairs when they go to military bases abroad.

This possibility was first broached by House Armed Services Committee Counsel John R. Blandford, during hearings on the Medicare Act.

However, Defense Department leaders, including Surgeons General of the Army, Navy and Air Force, offered no strong opposition to the dental-care provisions of the legislation.

Stating the problem squarely, Mr. Blandford told the Army "when you agreed to support this bill, you did so knowing that today approximately 14 percent of the dental care provided in the Army is provided to dependents. That will go out if this bill is passed."

Brig. Gen. J. B. Crawford, USA, then Acting Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel Operations, said the Army recognized the benefits it would lose, but added "the bill is so important to us that we think it is worth giving those up, if we can get the other advantages from it."

When the new law was passed early in June, Defense Department officials were in general accord with this view. They thought the many added benefits of the Medicare Act would offset the few benefits which were eliminated.

Now, with the effective date of the new law fast approaching, the Pentagon is becoming aware that morale has dropped far more than was expected among Army families faced with the loss of accustomed dental care.

This development, together with increased concern among all the Services that overseas dental facilities could be rapidly overloaded, may call for a new examination of this perplexing problem by top Pentagon leaders.

Company Doubles Business

United Services Life Insurance Company, Washington, D. C., has announced the passing of the $200 million mark for insurance in force.

In a memo to all Field Representatives, Mr. Lloyd M. Bauman, Executive Vice President, said total business in force had doubled in just 4 years, 19 days. In his message, Mr. Bauman lauded the agents for their continued service to the Commissioned Officer and his family. He pointed out that 72% of all agents contracted by United Services Life Insurance Company are still actively representing that organization in military installations throughout the United States and in many overseas bases, producing an annual average of over $800,000 paid for per agent.

RCA Weather Radar screen shows approach of storm.

Screen guides pilot around turbulent area.

All's well as plane leaves storm behind.

How RCA Weather Radar adds comfort and speed to your flight

No longer need you, as a traveler of the sky, experience the discomfort of bouncing around during storms. If your plane is equipped with RCA Weather Radar, you enjoy comfort and speed throughout — because the plane can by-pass turbulent elements.

For supersensitive RCA radar peers miles ahead of the plane to give your pilot advance warning of weather disturbances. The signals on its screen then point the way to a safe course around storm areas, thus saving precious minutes and miles.

The electronic leadership behind Weather Radar is inherent in all RCA products and services. And at the David Sarnoff Research Center of RCA, Princeton, N. J., scientists continue to explore new opportunities in "Electronics for Living"—electronics that make life easier, safer, happier.

LEADING AIR LINES installing RCA Weather Radar include American Airlines, Continental Air Lines, Pan American World Airways, Trans World Airlines Inc., United Air Lines; and these European Air Lines: Air France, BOAC, Iberia Air Lines of Spain, Sabena Belgian World Airlines, Swissair; Mexicana.
